

Garfield to vacate superintendent job

In a surprise move, Romulus School Supt. James M. Garfield Monday night asked the Board of Education to relieve him of his duties and to assign him to another administrative position in the school district.

The superintendent further requested that his move be made effective as soon as a new school chief is on the job.

The school board approved Garfield's request and announced a search would be begun for a new school superintendent.

Asked why he wished to step down, Garfield said: "I've been thinking about it for two to three months. Now that the millage levy is approved, I feel it is time for me to leave."

"I do not feel that I can do any more for the school district. It needs new leadership and a new approach from someone who can step in, tie up loose ends and forge ahead."

Garfield, who has been Romulus superintendent since April 1975, said his reasons for leaving had nothing to do with his relationship with the Board of Education.

"I have had no problems with the school board whatsoever," he emphasized.

He admitted that the rigors of battling for school millage over the years had taken its toll on him.

"I've had it. I'm all burned out," he said.

Prior to coming to the Romulus school system, Garfield was with the Crestwood School District in Dearborn Heights. He served as assistant superintendent in charge of general administration in 1968, and then as superintendent from 1969-72.

From 1955-68, he was employed by the Willow Run School District in Ypsilanti Township. While there, he served as teacher, assistant junior high principal, junior high principal, senior high principal and director of instruction.

Garfield, whose contract set to expire in 1981, had his salary increased from $36,000 to $39,000 annually this year by the school board.

It's official Election returns certified

Official returns, compiled by the City Clerk's Office, show no significant changes in the results of last week's general city election in Romulus.

Of interest is the large number of absentee votes. Deputy Clerk Linda Choate reported that the 979 absentee votes are the largest recorded in any city election in her memory.

The official vote showed Mayor William M. Oakley defeating his rival, Mel Morgan, by 2,923 votes to 2,804 votes. In only Precinct 9 and Precinct 20 (absentee voting) of the 20 Precincts did Morgan poll more votes than the incumbent mayor, garnering 146 to Oakley's 137, and 523 to the mayor's 423 respectively.

Incumbent Clerk Leonard J. Folmar decisively beat his opponent, Jerry Kubiak, former city ordinance officer under ex-mayors Terry Trout and James Stewart. Folmar pulled 2,910 votes to only 1,768 for Kubiak.

Beaten by a slightly larger margin than Morgan, by Oakley was incumbent Treasurer Helen Gallien. She garnered 2,049 votes to 2,866 votes for the winner, Beverly McAnally, veteran council member. Gallien had served only one term in office as treasurer, having served as finance director for the city under former Treasurer John Lewkowicz for eight years.

Aside from the race for mayor, which traditionally captures the interest of the voting public, the battle for treasurer was expected to be close. However, McAnally's 817-vote margin of victory made it a runaway.

Official vote results in the 14-candidate contest for seven council berths showed five incumbents winning re-election and two new faces emerging.

Winning incumbents and their vote totals were Mary Ann Banks, 3,239; Jimmie Raspberry, 2,457; Fred "Junior" Block, 2,411; Ray Cantrell, 2,211; and Gerry Canejo, 2,208.

Newly elected to City Council are Edward A. Rush, city florist, and Richard K. Yeramian, Rush, who filed a lawsuit against the city for allegedly holding a closed council session and which ended when the city agreed to pay his legal fees, was expected to be a high vote getter. Rush finished with 2,161 votes and Yeramian, 2,053.

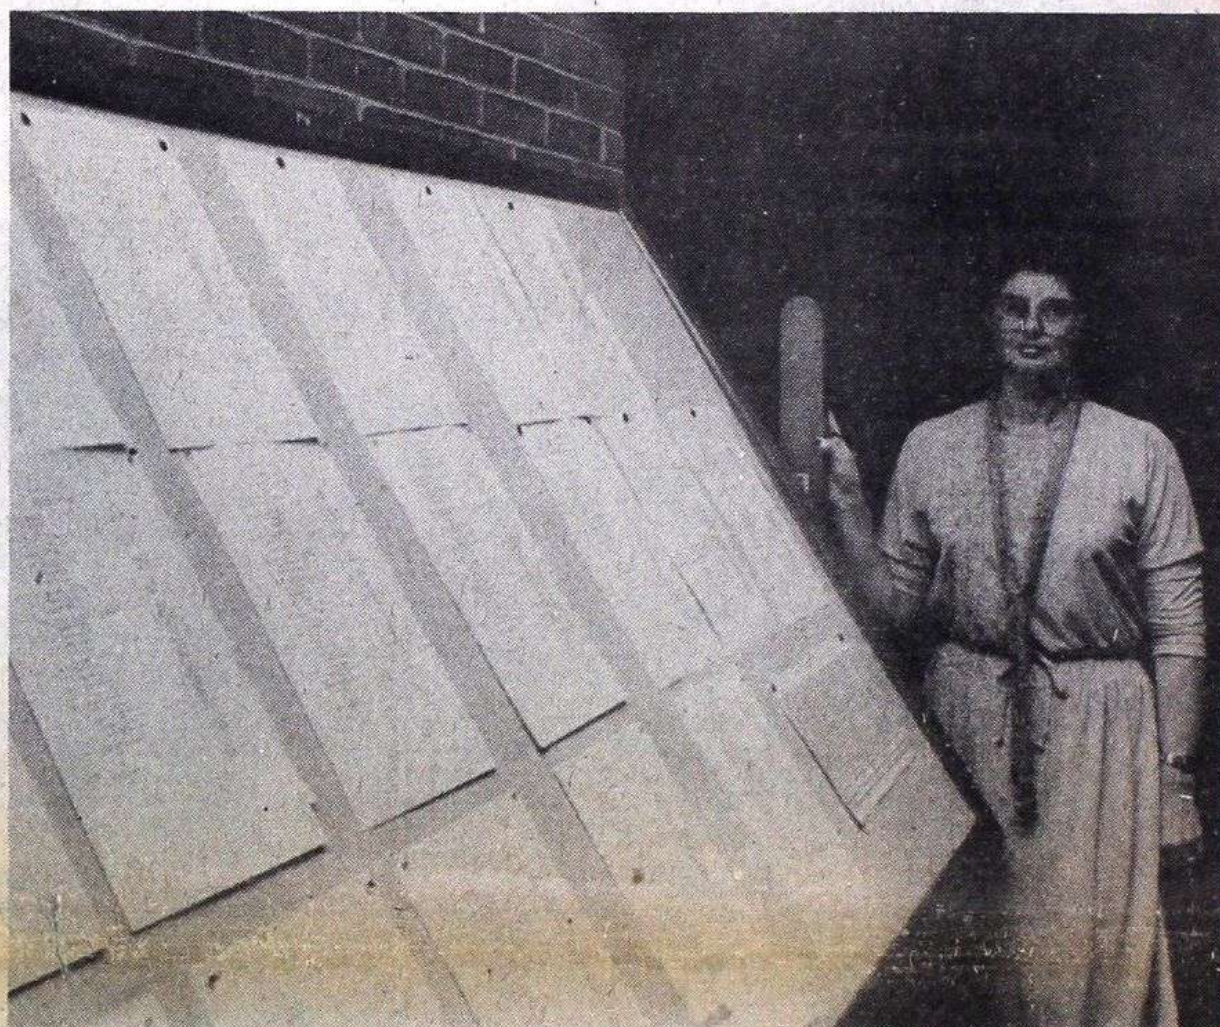

Yeramian, barely made the list of primary candidates to do battle for one of the seven council seats. His election surprised many political observers. He is employed as a deputy on the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

Losing out in the council race and their vote totals were Wayne F. Avery, current school board president, 1,435; Barry Baumann, 1,862; Richard F. Campbell, 1,441; incumbent Mary L. Carter, 1,843; Charles L. Dick Jr., 1,090; Edward D. Fall, 919; and Shirlee M. Helms, 1,062.

An advisory proposal showed the public in favor of a new ordinance for commercial and political signs by a vote of 2,669 to 1,410. Final decision on passing such an ordinance will be up to the City Council.

Proposition A, a 9-mill renewal sought by the Romulus school district, won support by a slim 121-vote margin 2,274 to 2,153. Unofficial returns had listed the victory at 21 votes, but the canvass uncovered a 100-vote error.

The millage renewal lost in the June school elections. Its failure last week would have placed the city school system in jeopardy, according to Supt. James Garfield.

Are 'miles apart'

Dispute still unresolved in Raymond Block firing

The case of an animal control officer who was fired by the City of Romulus last December remains unresolved and no closer to agreement as opposing lawyers were reported "miles apart" on the issue of back pay.

The controversy involves Raymond Block, 31, who was terminated by the city about Dec. 13, 1978. Block was hired by the city on Sept. 9, 1978.

A hearing before Bob Anderson, assistant corporation counsel for Wayne County, on Oct. 17, 1979 was cut short according to Block's attorney, Noel Keane of Dearborn, who said Anderson favored his client.

Keane said Anderson indicated that the city should pay Block from his termination date to the present time, based on a yearly salary of $12,338.

Charles Lowther, city attorney, had a slightly different version. He claimed that Anderson instructed both sides to sit down and "do some serious negotiations."

Keane said Anderson warned that if the case remains unresolved and he is forced to make a decision, the City of Romulus could lose all of its CETA funding if a subsequent appeal of his decision is denied.

Again, Lowther's interpretation differed somewhat. He said Anderson warned that if an appeal of his decision is denied, then ".....in his opinion the city would lose its CETA funding."

Block's lawyer also said the assistant corporation counsel sharply criticized hiring and firing practices currently in use by the City of Romulus.

"Mr. Anderson called them 'slipshod,'" Keane said.

Lowther admitted that Anderson had verbally found fault with the city's hiring and firing practices and its lack of written documentation in those policies.

Keane said that in his testimony before Anderson, Block alleged that he was fired "for political reasons" stemming from his refusal to provide written substantiation to the city on alleged wrongdoings of his superior, Al Luckey. Luckey was discharged recently by the city.

Lowther said the city refuted all of Block's "political allegations", but did admit that the assistant corporation counsel indicated he leaned in Block's favor.

"He said he would wait a short time before giving his decision in the case and suggested that Block be paid from last December to the present time," the city attorney said.

Lowther said he would not rule out Block's rehiring by the city, but said he does not know if Block would want to return to his job.

Lowther said in his last conversation with Keane that the two lawyers were "miles apart on compensation" for Block and no nearer to reaching an agreement in the case.

Both lawyers said they had written to Anderson, but had not heard from him. Keane said he asked for a decision in the case, while Lowther requested another hearing for presentation of witnesses.

Youth, 15, fatally injured in pedestrian-car accident

A 15-year-old resident of Girls Town in Van Buren Township was killed late Tuesday afternoon when she was struck by a car while walking along the South Service Drive of I-94 just west of Quirk Road.

Det. Walter Holowka of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department said Frances Lynn Karoly was dead when police and an ambulance arrived on the scene a few minutes after the accident happened at about 8 p.m.

He said the girl apparently died from head injuries she sustained in the accident. Driver of the car, Isabel H. Showler, 30, of New Boston, told police she thought she had hit a mail box and did not return to the accident scene until a few minutes after picking up her daughter at a local nursery.

Holowka said an inspection of her car revealed only a broken lens in the right front headlamp.

He said Mrs. Showler told officers she saw several girls walking on the right shoulder and tapped her horn while traveling east on the service drive. The detective said it was dark, windy and raining at the time of the accident. There are no street lights located in that area of the service drive.

Holowka said the girl was walking with four other girls, two from the girls home and two from the nearby Quirk Subdivision. After talking to the group, Holowka determined that she was walking with two of the girls and was closest to the highway. The other two girls, also walking abreast, were behind the Karoly girl and her two companions.

Holowka said Mrs. Showler said her car never left the road and that the girls were pushing each other as she approached. He said superficial examination of the girl's body did not indicate the type of injuries usually associated with being hit from the back.

"She could have been accidentally pushed or stumbled in front of the car. There is no evidence Mrs. Showler's car left the road or was speeding at the time of the accident," the officer said.

Mrs. Showler told police she felt a slight bump, but was not aware she had hit one of the girls. She said she stopped momentarily, but did not see anything and went on Holowka reported.

He said that until an autopsy report comes back, it would be impossible to tell how the accident actually occurred, whether she was struck from behind by the car or was pushed or stumbled into its path.

According to the detective, Girls Town is a home for problem girls and for those from broken homes. In some instances, girls are housed there temporarily while their families make adjustments.

School district develops new evaluation policy

Employees of the Romulus school district will be evaluated under a continuous program set up by a committee of teachers and administrators in response to a recent Board of Education decision.

Supt. James M. Garfield said the work of the committee indicates the dedication of its individual members. He had high praise for their efforts.

Under the new program, all school employees, whether a custodian or a principal, will be evaluated continuously with the goal of improving their effectiveness and to provide information for management decisions.

Wayne Avery, school board president, said: "It is the intent of the Board of Education to encourage the highest development of employee performance through continual evaluations, supportive assistance and opportunities for personal growth."

The committee labored through the summer months to revise the school district's 12-year-old teacher evaluation procedure, Garfield said.

Representing the Romulus Education Association were Michael Teasdale, senior high teacher, and Mrs. Elizabeth Clifone, teacher at Hale Creek Elementary School. Building administrators were represented by Dan Murray, principal of Merriman Elementary School, Marvin Fischer, assistant superintendent, and Terrel M. LeCesne, personnel and labor relations manager, represented the central administration.

Following several meetings during summer vacation, the committee developed a comprehensive teacher evaluation guide for probationary and tenured teachers, the superintendent said.

Also being developed by the administrative council are evaluation instruments to cover administrators, para-professionals, clerical, maintenance and transportation personnel.

"It is expected that these new evaluation procedures will be completed and put into operation before the end of this calendar year," Garfield said.

Airport's electronic equipment cleared of allegations by FAA

Wayne County's Public Works Committee has accepted the Federal Aviation Administration's (FAA) findings and ruled—as unfounded—allegations by a newly formed technician's union (PASS) that the Detroit Metropolitan Airport's electronic system is substandard, chairman of the committee Thomas Presnell (D-Westland) said.

The committee, as a result of the ruling, has recommended that the Board of Commissioners approve the release of $2,122,907 in federal grants for construction and equipment at both the Metro and Willow Run airports.

The FAA's report is the culmination of several months of exhaustive investigation following its request by the county board of commissioners.

According to Kenneth Melotte, assistant manager of the Airways Facilities Sector for the FAA, PASS (Professional Airways System Specialists) and PATCO (Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization) charged last January that the airport's electronic system used substandard "tube-type" equipment instead of "solid-state" designs.

"The charge," Melotte said, "was based on an incident in which the tower lost temporary contact with aircraft flying in the vicinity. As it turned out, the equipment being used at the time was 'solid-state', not 'tube-type' as PASS leaders inferred."

"This same equipment (tube-type) currently is being used at such major airports as O'Hare, Kennedy and Dallas where traffic averages 55 million passengers per year," Melotte explained. "Metro's traffic is in the neighborhood of 11 to 12 million."

An original request by the Wayne County Road Commission, operators of the airfield, asking that the County Board of Commissioners release the federal funds was postponed on the recommendation of Board Chairman Richard E. Manning pending the outcome of an investigation by the FAA into PASS's allegations.

In a letter to Thomas P. O'Rourke, managing director of the Road Commission and also airport manager, FAA Acting Director Wayne J. Barlow acknowledged the seriousness of the allegation and added: "We have spent considerable time and effort in analyzing the situation and...have determined that the communication system at Metro Airport has proven to be 99 percent reliable with less than one outage per frequency per year."

This high reliability," he continued, "is attributed to having a main and standby receiver and transmitter for each frequency and an emergency engine generator to provide power, if the commercial system fails. In the rare event both of the receivers fail at the same time, emergency battery powered transceivers are available. In addition, 'there are air traffic control procedures designed to cope with frequency failures."

Presnell said it was his understanding solid state electronic equipment would be installed, beginning in October 1981, "not because it is safer, but because it would be more efficient and would reduce manpower requirements."

Approval of the Public Works findings by the full Board of Commissioners will release the federal grants for snowplows and runway surveillance systems at Metro amounting to $716,626; resurfacing runway 21-c, edge lights and pron construction at Willow Run, $836,681; perimeter fencing at Willow Run, $121,721; and clearing of approach area to runway 3-R at Metro, $440,879.

Allegations 'unfounded'

Allegations that the Detroit Metropolitan Airport electronic equipment is substandard were ruled as "unfounded", following an investigation into the charges by the Federal Aviation Administration. The investigation was requested by members of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners when a newly formed technician's union (PASS) asserted that equipment utilized "tube-type" rather than "solid state" designs. The FAA determined the equipment is 99 percent reliable and is of the same quality as that used at such major airports as O'Hare, Kennedy and Dallas. Pictured in the control tower at Metro are Chairman Richard E. Manning of the County Board of Commissioners (from left), Commissioner Thomas Presnell, whose committee requested the investigation, Air Traffic Controller Jack Goslin and FAA executive Ron Ide.

City's crime rate declines

Police say the Neighborhood Watch program now being used in four subdivisions in Romulus "may have contributed" to a 22.7 percent drop in crime, based on FBI statistics.

Jerry Billiter, Romulus crime protection officer with the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, believes residents of the four areas have benefited greatly from the program.

Neighborhood Watch programs now are in effect in the Meadows, Oakbrook and Oakbrook Villa, Wyndcliff and Huron Hill Estates subdivisions.

Billiter explained that a home security survey is now being offered to all city residents in conjunction with the watch program. The new survey sends a trained police officer to the homes of residents who request them to perform a security check of premises and who will recommend inexpensive ways in which homeowners can protect homes and valuable possessions.

Billiter said the survey takes 45 minutes to one hour to complete and is free of charge to all Romulus residents. A survey is scheduled by city residents.

Recently, the work of Romulus officers, including Detectives Robert Pond and Ed Lindberg, cleaned up a score or more of cases involving burglary, arson, robbery and murder.

The detectives stress that they have been greatly aided in their investigations by the help of area residents.

In the contest

A Romulus Senior High School student drops his answer in box to the question "Who-o Has ESP?" which was posted in school halls during the week of Halloween. Everyone who tried to guess the answer got the news Nov. 1, when it was announced that "CORG Has ESP". CORC is the school's Career Opportunities Resource Center which functions as a team with the Job Placement Office in providing students with career awareness, self-assessment and employability skills.

Romulus High's CORC adds ESP to programmings

ESP, (Encouraging Successful Placement of Youth) is the new logo that is being used by the Romulus Senior High School Job Placement Office and Career Opportunities Resource Center (CORC).

The purpose of the center and placement office is to help students up to age 21 get a job and plan a career realistically.

Introduction of the new logo was promoted during the week of Oct. 30. The message, "We Have ESP", was communicated in the halls of Romulus Senior High to greet students and staff on that day. As students moved along the cafeteria line during lunch, "We Have ESP" placemats were also found on their trays.

The following day was Halloween and friendly ghost signs were posted next to the ESP signs asking, "Who-o Has ESP? Think you know?" The students were challenged to enter a 1-day contest to guess their suspicions. A prize was offered to all correct guessers.

On Nov. 1, the announcement was made: "CORG Has ESP" and signs appeared all over the building. Notes were written to staff with ESP gifts attached and a special bulletin was announced to all first hour classes explaining the new logo. Prizes were distributed Friday morning to winning contestants.

Realizing the importance of an image tie-in of the center and job placement office, the logo and promotion has been in the works for the last several months, but was put on hold while awaiting the renewal of the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funding. The CETA program was renewed and now pays for a vocational counselor, media specialist, reading specialist, placement specialist and secretary. The placement coordinator is funded through state vocational education funds. Together they provide students and out-of-school youth up to age 21 with the knowledge and experience that leads to getting a job.

Further promotion of ESP will be targeted to the community and businesses later this month.

This ESP CETA, Title IV program is made possible through the Romulus Community School District, Wayne County Board of Commissioners, through its Office of Manpower, and funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Labor under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act.

For additional information concerning the program, call 941-0800.

In Brief

Last Sunday was the fifth day following last week's Romulus city election, the deadline for all candidates who signed pledges to remove all political signs and advertisements in the best interests of a clean city.

To make sure candidates don't forget, Midge Prybyla, chairperson of the Romulus Beautification Committee, sent letters the day following the election to all candidates who signed pledges.

The letter also asked that the candidate's campaign committee comply with the signed agreement "as quickly as possible ..."

According to Prybyla, all of the 20 candidates who ran for mayor, clerk, treasurer and one of the seven open council seats in the general election signed pledges to remove political signs and advertisements.

With today being the eighth day after the election, any political signs and advertisements still posted undoubtedly will bring a deluge of telephone calls to Romulus City Hall asking for their removal.

Self-serve cars kept up in study

Motorists who pump their own gasoline maintain vehicles better than those who patronize full-service stations, according to an Automobile Club of Michigan survey.

The recent survey at a Detroit-area service station found 87 percent of the full-serve and 72 percent of self-serve motorists with vehicle deficiencies.

Auto Club's Emergency Road Service employees checked under the hoods of 113 full-service and 124 self-serve motorists' cars and found 79 percent of all those vehicles with at least one deficiency on a 12-point checklist.

The 237-vehicle survey showed:

- 34 percent at least one quart low on oil.
- 31 percent low on radiator coolant.
- 28 percent weak antifreeze.
- 27 percent low on windshield washer solvent.
- 22 percent improper tire pressure.
- 13 percent low on power steering fluid.
- 11 percent low on battery fluid.
- 5 percent with loose or frayed fan belts.
- 5 percent with defective lights or turn signals.
- 4 percent with unusable spare tires.
- 3 percent low on brake fluid.

"One possible explanation for the results of this survey is that a person who pumps his own gas is more likely to perform maintenance checks," said Robert M. Smith, Auto Club Emergency Road Service manager.

Careful planning avoids winter sports woes

Let's suppose for a minute that it's a relatively warm, sunny day in November. You're going hunting. You dress lightly because it's warm and you're expecting some vigorous exercise. You don't carry any emergency equipment, because you're just going a few miles down the road to a game area. It's only about a mile square, so you figure that, even if you get turned around, you're never more than a 15-minute stroll from some road.

No one is home when you leave, so you don't tell anyone where you're going and when you expect to be back, you don't think to leave a note.

You're out in the middle of the game area, looking for a downed bird, when the clouds roll in, the temperature drops and it begins to snow. You start feeling chilly immediately and decide to hurry back to the car. That's when you step in a hole and twist your ankle. About this time you discover you're uncertain of your directions.

You are in trouble. The road is no longer an easy 15-minute jaunt away. You are not dressed for the weather, you're getting wet, you have no way to signal for help except your firearm, and no one knows where you are or will know to send someone out looking for you. You could be dead in a few hours. What do you do?

The best advice, from Glenn Dudderar, Extension wildlife specialist, is to avoid getting yourself into such a situation. Before you go hunting, play the game of "what if" and go prepared to cope with whatever happens. And be sure that someone who loves you knows where you've gone and when you expect to be back. That person will not hesitate to send someone out to find you if he or she thinks you might be in trouble.

Each year hunters die because they get lost and either don't know what to do or don't have the emergency equipment they need.

Dudderar advises wearing layered clothing so you can take off or add layers as the weather changes. Carry matches, some high-energy food, a whistle, some string, a small flashlight and a knife.

The food will help you get warm, if you become chilled, and having something to eat will help you feel better, if you get lost.

Lighting a fire serves a psychological purpose, too. There's nothing like a cozy fire to keep your hopes up. It'll also help keep you warm and dry. And if you throw a few pieces of wet wood on a good fire, the resulting column of smoke should bring you lots of company.

The whistle is for signaling for help. It won't run out of fuel or ammunition, it doesn't get hoarse.

it'll operate under all sorts of weather conditions and it can't easily be mistaken for some naturally occurring sound or someone hunting.

The string and knife are helpful in first aid, emergency repairs and, if necessary, shelter building.

To these basics you can add a compass, if you know how to use it. If you don't it may just get you into more trouble.

One final rule for hunters and others who go into the field — if you realize you're lost, stay calm.

Physicians agree

Medical profession needs 'metamorphosis'

By CARRIE YOUNG
ANP Staff Writer

Imagine a grand ceremonial scene in which thousands of specialist doctors would gather to strip themselves of their stethoscopes. In a bottomless pit, the symbolic instruments would be tossed, taking with them the stigma that has blemished the medical profession.

Dr. David Blum, a practicing dermatologist from Canton Township, would like nothing better than to be a part of such an event.

"But I'm a realist," Blum said, "because the better doctor-patient relations built on trust, not fear, is not going to happen overnight, as much as we'd like."

Blum nevertheless has high hopes for the 1980s as the dawn of a new era. He looks to that decade for the modern day brand of Dr. Marcus Welby to enter, all equipped to fight disease in this world of specialized medicine. But the new breed of disease fighters also will be capable of personalizing their medicine, caring for each individual patient as Dr. Welby would be expected to do.

"I really believe the people can expect to see doctors who will make house calls. They'll know their patients and their medical histories," Blum said. "But this new brand of doctor will not be an exact replica of Dr. Welby."

A myth, after all, cannot be duplicated, or reborn. And, Dr. Welby is indeed a myth.

Dr. Marcus Welby...He is not a mortal man, but instead, he is a character from a cancelled television show.

If he is, or ever was, a part of American society, it has only been through his glorified television image, and in that respect, he personified medicine.

"I think it was people's belief that we in the medical profession had to measure up to this television character that brought on the rash of malpractice lawsuits against doctors in the 1960s," Blum asserted.

If not today, Blum believes, in the near future the American people will be better prepared to accept doctors as human beings, with human feelings.

A modified Dr. Welby—a physician that is half myth and half human—is paramount in Blum's medical forecast.

But others in the medical profession don't appear as optimistic as Blum, who began

'But this brand of doctor will not be an exact replica of Dr. Welby' practicing medicine during the mid-60s, peak years for malpractice lawsuits.

Dr. Karl Hanyi, a family doctor from Westland, believes the effects of the malpractice lawsuits of the 1960s still are with us and are here to stay.

"It will never be the same," Hanyi insisted.

Hanyi, who has been practicing family medicine for 26 years, said his type of practice is nearly a thing of the past. In an era of specialized medicine, Hanyi's techniques to relieve the aches and pains of family members is becoming less and less common.

A quick glance of a telephone directory is evidence of that. In Westland, for instance, Hanyi is one of two doctors who are listed as family practices.

Gone for good it appears are the days of the small town doctor who would instinctively rise to the call of the sick and drive miles into the wilderness to bring life into the world.

"Do you think I could deliver a baby from the equipment I carry with me in a black bag," Hanyi queried. "Those bags for house calls went out with the horse and buggy era."

He said, as a rule, house calls are no longer feasible due to the energy shortage and rising costs of medical insurance, both for the patient and the physician.

However, visits for the handicapped, the indigent and particularly the shut-in senior citizens should become more common, noted both Hanyi and Blum.

As the senior citizen population increases, as statistics are showing, house calls should prove necessary, they added.

Dr. Clarence Carpenter of Romulus has been practicing family medicine for 56 years. He said he never discontinued his "home service" for his longtime friends.

"Somebody has to take care of them. Some of them can't get out, so you have to go to them," Carpenter explained.

Of those interviewed, Carpenter seemed the least optimistic of a new, personalized medicine evolving.

He said Blue Cross-Blue Shield, specialized medicine, lawsuits and unions combined have turned medicine into a high-priced field.

"It's too late to turn back now," he said. Hanyi agreed, in part.

"Part of the reason we charge so much for a routine diagnosis is because we are trying to cover ourselves against possible lawsuits," Hanyi said. "That's what defensive medicine is all about."

Defensive medicine is commonly referred to by doctors as a kind of practice, based on a fear of being sued by the patient, Hanyi said.

"The malpractice suits of the 1960s triggered defensive medicine into being," Hanyi added.

Program surveys berries

"Buds, Bark and Berries" is the title of a nature program to be presented at the nature center of Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock on Nov. 25 at 2 p.m.

Naturalist Fred Wooley will identify many of the park's trees and shrubs (now leafless) through features such as shape, bark, color, buds and fruit during this outdoor walk.

Vehicle entry permits are required.

For additional information contact the nature center of Oakwoods Metropark at 782-1255 (Flat Rock).

Doctors then were on trial, with their competency, integrity and professional ethics in question.

"The worst is over," Blum said. Hanyi agreed.

It is no longer as difficult to obtain insurance as protection against malpractice suits as it was in the 1960. That is, in part, due to physicians forming their own insurance companies, Blum said.

And, since the creation of medical arbitration boards, there has existed the opportunity to ferret out the "Mickey Mouse" lawsuits, Hanyi added, allowing more attention to focus on those of merit.

Those interviewed agreed, however, that it was the malpractice lawsuits that were primarily responsible for the re-appraisal of the medical profession, serving to awaken the public to the reality that doctors are human, with human failings, and that they needn't be placed on pedestals to be trusted. "You can trust your doctor, and you should. But it has taken all of this to make people realize that like in any profession there are a certain amount of people who are incompetent," Blum said. Blum foresees the 1980s as a fresh starting point for his profession, a time of less suspicion...increased satisfaction.

What is your home worth?

What are your home, your furniture and your personal possessions worth?

Too many property owners give that question only casual thought until a windstorm, fire or other peril damages or destroys their homes, warns the Insurance Information Institute.

While practically all homeowners have insurance against such catastrophes, literally millions are underinsured. They are not valuing their dwellings properly or are overlooking the effects of inflation, now a double-digit rate, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce. For these reasons the Institute advises homeowners to review their policies often and to check at least four phases of coverage.

First, the amount of insurance on a dwelling should be based on the cost of building it today. Neither the purchase price a few years ago nor the current market value should be used as a guide.

The Institute suggests that the homeowner consult with his or her insurance representative to determine how best to estimate the replacement cost of the home. By insuring to 100 percent of that value, homeowners will be sure of having enough money to build a new home of the same quality should disaster strike.

If a home isn't insured to full value, it should be insured for at least 80 percent of replacement value. Even at that figure, a family whose $40,000 house is destroyed will have to pay $8,000 of the replacement cost because it will collect no more than the face amount of the policy—$32,000. On a $50,000 house insured to 80 percent of replacement value, the family will have to come up with $10,000 in addition to the insurance settlement to build a new dwelling equal to the old.

Homeowners who carefully review their policies learn—if they do not already know—another important reason for insuring to 80 percent or more of replacement value. If a dwelling with that coverage is damaged, the insurance company will pay the full replacement cost of any partial loss without figuring in depreciation, as usually is the case in settling any insurance claim.

When coverage is less than 80 percent, insurers pay the larger of two amounts—either the replacement cost less depreciation; or a portion of the current replacement value, determined by the ratio of the insurance coverage to the 80 percent figure.

A second important consideration for homeowners is the value of their personal property. The homeowners policy automatically covers personal property for an additional amount equal to 50 percent of the insurance for the dwelling, but its value today may be considerably more. The only sure way to tell is to make an inventory. The coverage can then be increased, if necessary.

Furthermore, homeowners who have valuable pieces of jewelry and furs usually need extra insurance protection. The homeowners policy covers jewelry and furs for a total of only $500 in case of theft. One fur coat or a simple piece of jewelry can easily be worth more than $500.

As a third step in securing adequate insurance, homeowners are advised by the Institute to have an appraisal made of silverware, antiques, works of art and other valuables. Usually, this property also needs added coverage. The appraisal record should be kept in the safe deposit box, along with the inventory of personal possessions.

Finally, homeowners should weigh carefully the possibility that they need more personal liability coverage. All homeowners policies provide $25,000 of this insurance, to protect them and their families to that amount, if a suit or claim is filed by someone for injuries, or for damage to his property.

Jury awards for hundreds of thousands of dollars, a rarity 20 years ago, have become common. Additional liability coverage is relatively inexpensive. It costs $3 to $5 to increase $25,000 coverage to $50,000, $6 to $10 to increase it to $100,000, $10 to $15 for $200,000 and $15 to $20 for $300,000.

Sassafras Trails: A 'little bit of country'

By MAUREEN CAMPS
ANP Staff Writer

A rock that bends, a pet skunk (who's on a diet), a cutting from a giant 500-year-old tree, a mammoth elephant tooth and part of a dinosaur's backbone are among the wonders of nature that fill three classrooms at Wilson School, and make up the nature museum of the Wayne-Westland Community Schools.

The museum is in the school right next to the 55 acres of woods and paths at Palmer and Wildwood roads in Westland that are called "Sassafras Trails."

The woods, filled with trees and plants of all kinds, plus a few rare breeds like the Sweet Chestnut tree and Tupelo tree, both extremely rare in Michigan, are an oasis of nature in the suburban Wayne-Westland area. And although there are parts of the trails where trees have been and are planted every year, there are also parts that still "look like they did when the white man first came to this area," according to Don Howarth, director of the nature center and museum.

Howarth obviously is very in love with his nature center and his hobbies of hiking, rock collecting and other outdoor-type activities. And he shares his interest and knowledge with hundreds, no thousands, of youngsters every year.

Students from Wayne-Westland Schools, Girl and Boy Scout troops and other collections of youngsters tour the museum and hike through the nature center trails all during the school year. In the fall, it's the crinkle of fallen leaves beneath the feet and the beautiful changing colors, in the spring its the budding and re-awakening of the woods, in the winter it's cross country skiing, using a large stock of kid-sized equipment supplied by the center.

Howarth will take any class through the grand tour — museum and woods. As the youngsters sit on chairs and on the floor of the first classroom, he tells them first that everything in the museum is donated.

He shows the soft and furry skins of minks, a skunk and beaver, discusses the pros and cons of trapping animals, brings out the prize catches of an extensive rock collection valued at $10,000, and explains how the large conclave solar reflectors could cook a hotdog for you.

The gnarled branch of a desert cottonwood tree, and the huge slab from the 500-year-old Redwood tree are other popular items in the show and tell. The room is literally filled with scientific exhibits and apparatus, including weather equipment, rocks and plants, and a large green and white environmental flag.

Howarth's comments, in the museum and particularly during the hike through the nature center, are liberally laced with the environmental message that holds the wonders of nature sacred.

In a separate room at the museum, there lives a furry and fat skunk, a few birds who ostensibly live in a cage but at times get the run of the room, a black rabbit that loves to nibble celery.

A third room is a hands-on collection of exhibits, filled with various types of rocks, wildlife scenes, colorful wall murals and science games.

Howarth appears to enjoy most the walk through the Sassafras Trails with the youngsters, where he points out the different kinds of trees, and tells the students about how 18 elementary schools have "adopted" 18 different kinds of trees they will soon be planting.

The "tour guide" proudly points out that there is practically no litter on the ground, and a quick scan proves the point.

The students come to one place, an arboretum, where he happily tells them that the site was chosen by a pair of Yellow Crown Night Herons as their home. The fact that the birds nested there is extremely unusual, since they are rarely if ever found further north than Alabama.

Some of the youngsters have been to the center before — teachers take students there every year — and other kids say that they walk or ride bikes through the trails by themselves. But the official tour ends in about two hours.

The students go back to their classrooms, the cars keep whizzing past, streets are paved and buildings built.

But the museum continues to capture and preserve small bits of natural history, and the woods remain as they were "when the first white man came to the area." That pleases nature-lover Howarth just fine.

Out in the country

This little bit of "wilderness" is right in the middle of the Wayne-Westland Community Schools, 55 acres of wooded land at Palmer and Wildwood roads that is kept as a nature center by the school district. Students like these fifth graders from Lincoln School visit the center each year, guided through the Sassafras Trails and the indoor museum by Don Howarth, who points out the various trees and types as the group hikes along. — ANP photo by Tom Greenwood.

A hunk of skunk

This little skunk is quite an armful for Todd Szyzkowski, 10. Todd's class visited the Wayne-Westland Schools' nature center at Palmer and Wildwood, walking over from nearby Lincoln

School to visit the museum and Sassafras Trails. Todd got a chance to pick up the tamed skunk, who is on a diet but still needs to shed a few pounds. — ANP photo by Tom Greenwood.

Tall tales told

Go back to the time "when pine and Paul Bunyan were kings" during a special program to be conducted at the nature center of Kensington Metropark near Milford on Nov. 28 at 7 p.m.

Between 1840 and 1900 the loggers came, they saw, and they conquered the vast pine forests of Michigan. Using slides, some "tall tales," and logger's attire, naturalist Dave Molilanen will provide participants with a glimpse of lumbering and the life of a lumberjack during this colorful era in Michigan's past.

Advance registration is required for this 1½- to 2-hour program, so are vehicle entry permits.

For information or registration contact the nature center at Kensington Metropark at 685-1561 (Milford).

BEST ROUTES, PARKING AREAS FOR U of M STADIUM

Go Blue!

Football fans attending the Michigan-Ohio State game Saturday in Ann Arbor should arrive in the stadium area one hour before the expected 1 p.m. kickoff. Since kickoff is subject to change, if the game is televised, those attending should check radio and TV newspaper listing for possible changes. Automobile Club of Michigan recommends that all football fans coming from outside the Ann Arbor area take I-94 to the Saline Road exit, which will be one-way inbound before the game and one-way outbound afterward. Motorists also can use the new section of M-14 (not shown on map) between Griswold Road and I-275 and connect with southbound US-23 or Main Street. No major construction projects are planned on main routes leading to the stadium. There is parking for about 10,000 cars within easy walking distance of the stadium. More than 105,000 persons are expected for the game.

Explore wonders of fall at Oakwoods Metropark

This fall explore the wonders of nature at the nature study area of Oakwoods Metropark, located 5 miles northwest of Flat Rock. Both the nature study building and nature trails are open year-around.

to 5 p.m. weekends and 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Mornings are reserved for school groups during the school year.

Four nature trails, from 700 feet to 2 miles in length, are labeled for self-guided hikes. Trail hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Persons visiting the nature study area are prohibited from collecting flowers, leaves, rocks or animals.

Family pets and picnicking are not permitted in the nature study area. However, there usually is a designated picnic site near the nature study area to accommodate school groups.

Special guided nature hikes are available to the general public on specific dates. For additional information call 782-1255 (Flat Rock). Metropark vehicle entry permits are required.

Bullard says

State House OKs tax on gas, oil companies

The State House of Representatives has approved legislation to increase the severance tax on gas and oil companies in Michigan. The measure, which passed despite four months of intensive lobbying by oil and gas companies, would fund the state's Home Heating Assistance Program. That program helps low-income families and senior citizens pay their heating bills.

The heating aid bill recently was signed into law, but contained no provisions for funding the program, which will cost about $34 million this winter. A similar program last year aided over 200,000 senior citizens and 80,000 poverty-stricken families.

State Rep. Perry Bullard (D-Ann Arbor), sponsor of the tax increase on gas and oil companies, called the House action "a major victory for senior citizens and the victims of energy cost inflation."

Bullard said: "Since it's citizens and taxpayers who are financing the oil companies' gluttonous profiteering, it's only fair that we recover some of their enormous profits to meet vital human needs such as warmth during our cold winter months."

"It is perfectly reasonable," continued the Ann Arbor Democrat, "to ask that the producers and royalty owners who benefit directly from the skyrocketing price of oil — and who will benefit more after 1981 as decontrol raises the price of oil to more than $23 per barrel — share 6 percent of that inflated price to fund this crucial assistance for senior citizens' and working families' inflated heating costs."

Bullard's proposal would increase the severance tax paid by oil and gas companies. That tax, currently set at two percent, is based on the wellhead value of oil and natural gas. Under the House-passed legislation, oil companies would pay 8 percent; natural gas producers would pay 4 percent.

"The severance tax hasn't changed a bit since 1929, even though the value of oil and gas has doubled time and time again," Bullard said. "In fact, of the eight states producing comparable amounts of oil and gas, we have the seventh lowest tax on oil and gas producers. Increasing the severance tax lets the Michigan public share the benefit from the one-time-only removal of our scarce oil and gas resources."

An analysis prepared by Bullard's staff indicates that the proposed severance increase would have virtually no effect on the retail price of oil and gas sold in Michigan — less than ten cents on every 100 dollars of natural gas consumed.

"The effect on Michigan consumers is infinitesimal," Bullard said, "because the oil produced in Michigan goes into a national pool where the effects of the tax are "Further, with the value of oil and gas increasing every day, HB 4730 will not have any negative effect on future oil and gas production," the Democratic lawmaker said. "Since 1972, the price per barrel for Michigan crude has risen from about $3 to more than $13 — more than four times the amount received just seven years ago! And with deregulation, the price will easily go over $23 per barrel," he said.

"With these kinds of increases in price," Bullard said, "it's ridiculous to say that oil companies won't get enough profit to encourage drilling in Michigan."

"The issue is clear," Bullard said. "It's greed versus need."

Passage of the legislation came as a surprise to some Capitol observers who thought the oil lobby had succeeded in killing the bill.

Harris presses for county lottery

In an effort to bolster county services to its senior citizens, Wayne County Commissioner Edgar Harris of Taylor is pressing for the passage of a resolution seeking a county lottery. Even with the approval of the full Board, however, it would still require legislative action, Harris said.

Harris' resolution points out that there has been a noticeable deterioration in the county's ability to provide necessary services, such as hot food programs, monitoring incapacitated seniors, food on wheels to assure home-bound seniors have at least one hot, prepared meal a day, and a variety of other programs dependent upon county, state and federal grants.

The proposal would create a County Lottery Office, operated by an appointed county lottery director who would be in total control of ticket or "share" sales, sales agents, deposits into local banks, credit unions and savings and loan associations. He would also be required to provide the Board of Commissioners with monthly and annual reports.

According to Harris, 50 percent of the lottery revenue will go for prizes, 30 percent to be deposited into a special Senior Citizen Fund to provide housing, medical care, in-home care and food service for seniors and the balance to be set aside for the County's General fund to help guarantee the county's pension program.

Harris is asking the commissioners to have the State Legislature pass the appropriate laws authorizing establishment of a county lottery and to have it placed on the ballot for the next regular election.

By 5-4 vote

'Sunset' proposal rejected by House panel

As expected, the House Policy Committee has rejected on a 5-4 vote a bipartisan attempt to include termination, or sunset dates, in a bill which sets up a joint legislative committee to review the operations of state agencies.

The amendments were offered by State Reps. Paul Hillegonds of Holland and Richard Fitzpatrick of Battle Creek, and have the support of Michigan Common Cause, a citizens' lobby group.

"We were not surprised that the committee defeated the amendments," Hillegonds commented after the vote. "After all, the committee is chaired by Rep. Joe Forbes and he opposes termination dates in any form."

The vote came after an hour and half debate among committee members on whether the addition of termination dates to the Forbes review schedule would affect the ability of the state to sell bonds.

State Rep. James Defebaugh of Birmingham, argued that the termination issue was irrelevant to the question of whether the state's bonds would be marketable. He pointed to New York City's financial troubles in which the city's bonds were not marketable with or without termination dates.

In arguing for termination dates, committee member J. Michael Busch of Saginaw said that without termination dates the legislature would have little impetus to conduct the review called for in the measure.

"The issue we face is whether this legislature is serious about making the state government accountable, about concentrating on the waste and inefficiency that leads to citizen initiative drives like California's proposition 13," Hillegonds said.

During the meeting, Forbes, who also is the Majority Floor Leader and schedules debate on all bills, made clear his position on termination dates and sunset laws.

Forbes said he agreed with earlier Senate action to change the title of the measure from the "sunset bill" to the "program review and evaluation bill."

"The whole idea is not to sunset," Forbes told the committee.

Hillegonds and Fitzpatrick have pledged to continue the fight for termination dates on the House floor.

"This is an important issue and it ought not to be decided by a small group of legislators, but by all of us who serve in the House," Hillegonds argued.

It is unclear when the matter will come up for floor action, but Hillegonds, Fitzpatrick and Common Cause all believe they have "a chance" of gaining House concurrence for termination dates.

Area residents are honored at Pheresis Recognition Day

A number of area residents were among the more than 500 special blood donors to be honored by the Southeastern Michigan Chapter, American Red Cross on Nov. 11 at the third annual Pheresis Recognition Reception.

Blood Services Director Dr. A. William Shafer was joined by Dr. Shobha Shah, medical director, in presenting service award pins to Michael Furman, David Tumino, John McAuliffe and Michael Gregory of Canton Township; Jack Halsonbeck of Belleville; Craig Double, Linda Baines, Ronald Mutschler and Steven Jenks of Garden City; and Mark Brown, Charles Buchanan and Charles Kilanski of Romulus.

Also honored were Westland residents Charles Doherty, Thomas West, Richard Schultz, Patricia Kinzinger, Mark Eden, William Peter, Michael Robinson, Gerald Borycz, William Warden, Joseph Hinkle, Patrick Kernahan, Liz Owczarzak, Paul Letourneau, Kaye D. Cole, Robert D. Forsgreu and James Pischer.

"Pheresis is an unusual kind of blood donation," explained Dr. Shafer. "Instead of giving whole blood, as in regular donations, a pheresis donor gives a specific component of blood such as plasma, platelets or white cells."

A pheresis donation takes two or more hours. Blood is drawn from one arm and passed through a blood-separating instrument that separates and collects a single blood component.

Pheresis procedures are used to collect plasma (plasmapheresis), platelets (plateletpheresis) or white cells (leukapheresis). The remaining blood components, including the red cells, are returned to the donor. The body quickly replaces the component drawn in pheresis, normally within 24 hours, related Dr. Shafer.

Pheresis donations are used to benefit patients undergoing cancer therapy and those who have leukemia or aplastic anemia or other diseases which respond to this form of medical treatment.

For additional information regarding pheresis donations, contact the American Red Cross at 833-4440, ext. 252.

9Ae. Motion by McAnally, supported by Cantrell, to adopt Resolution 79-459: RESOLUTION 79-459

WHEREAS: In mid-September the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee approved a bill establishing an Energy Mobilization Board (EMB) to expedite the approval and construction of priority energy projects; and WHEREAS: The President made it clear that the EMB would not be empowered to override the substantive requirements of existing local, state and Federal laws. The House Commerce Committee made major changes in the President's EMB proposal. The Committee's bill, however, allows the EMB to waive substantive as well as procedural requirements of existing local, state and Federal laws; and

WHEREAS: The Committee's bill would give the EMB broad powers to intrude in areas traditionally governed by state and local laws, which could have serious and far reaching effects. The EMB could waive local health, zoning, environmental, or revenue laws when making a decision on a priority energy project; and

WHEREAS: Despite strong opposition from every organization representing state and local elected officials, the Committee's bill is gaining support. Supporters of the substantive waiver proposal argue that the power will be checked, however, it is unrealistic to expect that Congress would take the time and effort to evaluate or reverse the EMB's waivers of local, state and Federal laws; and

WHEREAS: Senator J. Bennett Johnson (Louisiana) will probably offer an amendment allowing the EMB to waive substantive laws, neither the President nor Congress would be required to concur in a waiver of laws by the EMB.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That the City Council of the City of Romulus does herewith set forth its unalterable opposition to the proposed Federal Energy Mobilization Board to authorize Federal waiver of existing local law for priority energy projects on the basis that there will be no checks on the EMB's actions, and the fact that it could waive state and local health, zoning, environmental or revenue laws when making a decision on a priority energy project.

BE IT FINALLY RESOLVED: That copies of this resolution be forwarded to President Jimmy E. Carter, Governor William Milliken, U.S. Senator Donald Riegle, State Senator William Faust, Representatives Edward E. Mahalak and Gary M. Owen and all surrounding communities. Roll call vote showing: Ayes - Raspberry, Canejo, Block, Cantrell, McAnally, Banks. Nays - None. Motion carried unanimously.

10A. Motion by Block, supported by McAnally, to approve City Warrant No. 79-34, dated October 23, 1979, Voucher Number 33726 thru Voucher Number 33964, in the total amount of $491,337.53, provided funds are available. Roll call vote showing: Ayes - McAnally, Canejo, Block, Banks. Nays - Cantrell, Raspberry. Motion carried.

II. Motion by Block, supported by Cantrell, to adjourn the meeting. Roll call vote showing: Ayes - Raspberry, Block, Cantrell, McAnally, Banks. Nays - Canejo. Motion carried.

Things that matter

A Silence can be a gift...

By George Plagenz
United Feature Syndicate

Few minor illnesses can have a more salutary effect on a man than an attack of laryngitis. To be rendered speechless for 48 hours reminds you of several things:

You realize how many things you say in the course of a day which could just as well be left unsaid. When you have to whisper or write frown what you want to say, you make sure it is worth the effort. It is surprising how many times you decide it isn't.

A marriage counselor said the other day: "Most marriages would go smoother, if husbands and wives would just remember to say the right thing to each other at the right time and — just as important — to let the wrong thing go unsaid."

So the first observation of a person who has lost his voice is: "We talk too much."

Another thing a man notices when he has lost his voice is that he can't shout. Even the mildest-mannered fellow, when he is unable to speak above a whisper, is likely to be surprised at how many times during the day he is on the verge of raising his voice. Now he doesn't — only because nothing comes out.

Perhaps it would be a good idea, if people went speechless automatically every time they opened their mouths to shout — quite the same way a fuse blows out when we overload our electrical system.

Some people insist it does us good to shout and get things off our chest. But that is thinking only of ourselves. We are not thinking how unpleasant it is for the people we are shouting at or who have to listen to us.

Laryngitis also has a way of humbling a man.

I recall an occasion 20 years ago when — as now — I had lost my voice. One of the little boys at our house was just learning to talk. His vocabulary still was small, and he made certain words do duty for several meanings.

For instance, the word "big." It meant "large." It also meant "a great amount." A lake, therefore, was "big water." And big also meant "loud."

So while his father was going around in a whisper, this little boy said, "Daddy not talking big today." He was right, even in the sense that you and I use the phrase. It is impossible to "talk big" or to make much of an impression when you are reduced to a squeak.

And you realize, maybe for the first time, how most of us are inclined to build up our importance in other people's eyes by "talking big."

When we can't speak, we suddenly feel stripped of our most important possession. We feel our prestige depends on our ability to talk. Too often, sad to say, it does. So when we lose our voices, it humbles us.

But the thing that bears most heavily on your mind when you can't

Dr. Bernard Clausen, one of the outstanding preachers of the last generation, said once: "There was a time when an accident deprived me of the use of my tongue and threatened to leave me speechless through the years."

"Out of those anxious days of silence I took a vow that if the precious gift of speech were given back to me, I should try to speak no untrue, unfair, unkind word so long as I lived. And that vow still echoes in my soul."

These are just some of the thoughts that go through a man's head — this man's head — when he has lost his voice for 48 hours.

Paul Gallico, in his memorable little story about himself called, "You Don't Know How Lucky You Are to Be Married," said: "The loneliness and silence close in when the rattle of one's key in the front door initiates no answering sound. It is in this moment that one learns that the bark of a dog, the meow of a cat or the chirp of a bird is no substitute for a human voice."

"Moving to a club or hotel doesn't help. Sooner or later you encounter that instant when you come in and no voice says, 'That you, dear?' or even, 'Well, where have you been THIS time?'"

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 14
Read John 1:35-42

"You are Simon...but you shall be called Peter, the rock!" (John 1:42 TLB)

The human weakness of Peter is one of his most appealing traits. Tracing his spiritual pilgrimage through the New Testament, we find him beginning his discipleship with high promise. We marvel at his spiritual perception at the Mount of Transfiguration. We grieve at his denial during Jesus' trial. But we rejoice at his spiritual renewal as he becomes Peter the apostle, evangelist, pastor, martyr.

When the Master looks at us, He sees not only what we are, but what He can enable us to become.

From Peter we can learn not to expect so much from ourselves that we become discouraged. We also can learn to depend more upon God. The grace of God does not change us unless we respond. It can change our outlook, and with our outlook, our attitudes. With changed attitudes we can become what we otherwise would never be.

In all our ups and downs, our successes and failures, and in all our disappointments and weakness, the Master says to us, "You are... you will be... follow me."

PRAYER: Lord of all life, in all our fluctuations of spirit, help us to believe in Your purpose of love for our lives. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: Today I will respond to the grace of God.

Editorial opinions

What do you think?

Several years ago, a group of college students, stood outside shopping centers seeking signatures on petitions to amend the U.S. Constitution. The petitions listed 10 additions the students felt would improve and protect the individual liberties of the citizens of this country. The response those students received was less than good. Many of the people asked to sign were convinced that the young men and women circulating the petitions belonged to a subversive group that was attempting to undermine the integrity of our way of life. We have reprinted below, the 10 amendments the students were seeking citizen support for. What do you think? Would you have signed the petition?

I.

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

II.

A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.

III.

No soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house, without the consent of the Owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

IV.

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

V.

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

VI.

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defense.

VII.

In Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury, shall be otherwise re-examined in any Court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

VIII.

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

IX.

The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

X.

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

It you haven't yet guessed, the 10 amendments are already a part of our constitution and commonly referred to as the Bill of Rights. One is forced to reflect on the fact that so many Americans are apparently still unaware of the protections built into our constitution. It is even more interesting that so few contemporary Americans would support such amendments.

House eyes new legislation

By ROBERT LAW
State Representative
36th District

RIGHT TO STRIKE LEGISLATION REACHES HOUSE

Last week the House began to consider a package of bills aimed at resolving one of the state's most nagging problems—the right of public employees to strike. The bills were hammered out during the summer and last few months by a special subcommittee of the House Labor Committee, and were finally reported out of the full committee unanimously in a true spirit of compromise.

House consideration of the legislation comes on the heels of numerous and lengthy school strikes across the state. At one time during the fall weeks, Michigan had more teachers on strike than any other state in the nation. And these bills attempt to address that situation.

Over the past 11 years, there have been some 450 public employee strikes in Michigan. This year, thousands of students will be attending school well into June because negotiations between school board members and teachers reached an impasse.

There are seven bills in the right to strike package—although two of the bills are nearly identical to two others—which legitimize strikes for certain public employees.

The major bill legalizes strikes only for local governmental employees, teachers and other school employees. It does not permit striking by members of the state civil service or by police and firefighters who are covered under the compulsory binding act.

Under the provisions of this bill, supervisors would not be permitted to strike and employers would be allowed to replace striking employees. The bill does not provide for mandatory binding arbitration, nor does it prevent supervisors from belonging to the same union as those they supervise.

The bill states that a judge may enjoin a strike and require employees to return to work only if the health and safety—not the "welfare"—of a community is threatened. Elements of this bill are very controversial, and even though it had unanimous committee support, attempts will be made to amend the binding arbitration and supervisor-employee bargaining unit language.

A second bill in the package exempts teachers from tenure act coverage while they are on strike to ensure that any pay they lose because of the strike will not be reimbursed under the tenure act.

Another bill gives the Michigan Employment Relations Commission authority to order intensive negotiations during the 10 day notice period before a strike begins and to order up to 16 hours of negotiations each day once a strike begins.

This package of bills took months to develop, and because of the controversial nature of several of them, action on the floor may change them dramatically. There were fireworks during committee deliberations, and the same strong emotions may carry over to the House debate.

PBB TESTING PROGRAM IN PERIL

Michigan's PBB testing program, aimed at keeping contaminated meat out of grocery stores, may be crippled by drastic cutbacks in staff and funds. Although there are efforts underway to restore some of the funds to the Department of Agriculture, there is a concern that farmers can by-pass state tests to sell contaminated meat if these efforts are unsuccessful.

The cuts occurred as a result of Governor Milliken's order to trim the agriculture budget by $1.8 million. The entire sum was taken out of the PBB unit and the number of inspectors was reduced from 13 to three.

Although the contamination problem has been substantially reduced, there are, according to the Department of Agriculture, 13 "problem" farms where cattle continue to show excessive levels of PBB.

The Department has stated that it can identify and condemn all PBB contaminated cows within a year if funds are restored by the Legislature, and thus decontaminate the 13 farms. Agriculture officials met with lawmakers last week to state their case for increased funding.

Meanwhile, inspectors from the animal health division are monitoring dairy cattle for PBB before they are sold at livestock markets. However, the federal government is threatening to cut back funds for meat inspection. If the Legislature does not appropriate more funds, the Department says, inspectors will have to be laid off.

ANOTHER ANTI-REDLINING BILL PASSES

A few weeks ago, the House passed a bill to outlaw insurance "redlining"—the practice by some companies of refusing to insure potential policyholders based on their address.

Last week, the House Civil Rights Committee approved a bill to forbid businesses which make credit cards available to their customers from "redlining" potential card holders simply because of where they choose to live.

The bill is needed because "redlining" of any type is discriminatory and I believe that individual consumers should be afforded the same rights regardless of the neighborhood in which they choose to live.

Several persons testified in front of the committee on instances where homeowners in a particular neighborhood earned a substantial income but were denied credit cards by the major oil companies. Hopefully, this legislation will change those unfair practices against persons who deserve credit but cannot receive it because of the location of their homes.

One provision of the bill will protect small-town businessmen. Businesses whose gross incomes are less than $2 million a year would not be forced to issue credit cards to persons who are considered high risks.

Small-town businesses could also deny credit cards to persons living outside the store's "trade area."

This provision would protect businesses from "rip off" artists—persons who may live 200 miles away from a store, buy merchandise from the store but have no intention of paying their bill because they realize it would be difficult for the establishment to collect the money due them.

A possible taxing situation

By DENNIS FASSETT
Managing Editor

It appears that the next step likely to be taken to bail Wayne County out of its current financial plight, may well be a County Income Tax.

In view of the county's past practice of simply burying their problems in our money, this course of action would certainly be consistent.

But I would expect that any move to harness Wayne County taxpayers to another tax, a tax that Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit would then be able to use to promote his city, will meet with considerable opposition. And well it should.

For too long, the hard pressed residents of Western Wayne County have been forced, by the Detroit-dominated Board of Commissioners, to subsidize the county politics of 'Hizonor'. Enough is enough.

It would be one thing if county government had been frugal with our money and was now simply trapped in an inflationary spiral, but obviously that is not the case.

Rather, county government has missed no chance to promote its insiders into high-priced jobs that they cannot, and do not, have to be able to handle.

In addition, county government, a puppet of big labor, has consistently ignored fiscal good sense. County officials have consistently bowed to the wishes of labor and have created the highest priced group of workers yet assembled.

Why then should the county expect anyone to stand still for a grab for further funds created by a County Income Tax.

The case of the Walter Reuther Long Term Care Center is an excellent example of County waste and abuse of taxpayers.

Knowing that the state will not provide a blank check for the operation of that facility, the county nevertheless managed to negotiate the hospital workers into becoming the highest priced people, in similar professions, in the nation.

When the state refused to reimburse the county for the full cost of the facility, the county had to pick up a large part of the tab.

It should not, and was not intended to operate that way.

Who then is the beneficiary of the county's benevolent waste of our money?

No one, I would imagine.

Some at the county will defend the practice of employing low-skilled employees in high-priced categories, as a community service. But that is hogwash.

If the intent of creating employment is simply to transfer a person from public assistance programs to county employment where they are unable to produce, the problem has not been improved, only made worse.

The county has in effect created a whole class of workers who must look to the county as their sole possible source of a livelihood.

It would have been far better to have deliberately held down wages and to have encouraged those employees to migrate into the private sector once skills would support that move.

But the county would then have lost its large and generally loyal group of captive supporters.

County government has created a fantasy island in a sea of reality. When the water subsides, as it is now, those employees hit hardest by the current mess the county is in will discover that they have not been trained to deal with reality.

The transition will be painful. It did not have to be.

It has been established to the satisfaction of many that government has never been able to handle any job as well as the private sector.

It is time that the county wakes up and begins to provide the training they should be providing. Not the debilitated public assistance they have been.

County income tax indeed!

For advice

Ask Carol Premo

By CAROL PREMO, C.S.W.

Carol Premo, a Certified Social Worker in private practice in Belleville, Mich., will be presenting weekly answers to problems which may have been the source of either joy or pain for some of our readers.

You are invited to ask Carol about a problem or discuss a solution by mailing your letter to: Carol Premo, Associated Newspapers, 47818 W. Huron River Drive, Belleville, Mich. 48111.

Dear Carol,

First of all I would like to commend you on your answers to many issues that are asked of you. I think your advice is excellent and I personally know that many people have been helped by you.

I would like your advice on a problem I am experiencing and how I should handle it. My husband and I married August of this year after 2 years of dating. We went together for two years and had certain problems but decided we loved each other and wanted to spend the rest of our lives together.

Recently, my husband has been spending about 3 nights a week in the bar with the guys he works with. After work they just go to the bar, forget about time, get intoxicated and then he comes home.

He does not call. If I want to know where he is I have to call several bars until I reach him. When he does come home I am quite upset and let him know. I often have had dinner prepared and end up throwing it out because he does not come home. I have asked him why he does this and he says because he knows I'll tell him not to do it and he does it to rebel to show me he is his own man. I have tried not saying a word to him and acting like it does not bother me. He still continues to do it.

I am bored. I sit and wait for him and wonder if he will make it home safely. I want to spend time with him but feel rejected.

I feel that if he really loves me he would want to come home and spend his evenings with me. Am I wrong for thinking like this? I have even suggested to him that I think he has a drinking problem and should get help before he ends up hurting himself or someone else. Should I hang in there using patience and love or should I just let go.

Dear Unsigned,

Unfortunately just "hanging in there" with love and patience probably isn't going to be enough. If you recount the facts accurately, your husband will need counseling before his problems can get better. When a male prefers the company of other males over the company of his wife it indicates immaturity, problems in male-female relationships or serious marital difficulties. His statement about being his "own man" indicates both immaturity and male-female difficulties. A mature man does not prove his masculinity by hurting and neglecting his wife.

In reference to his drinking, drinking left unchecked generally gets far worse than better. I suggest you start with counseling and encourage your husband to join you. If he refuses you may find you have a very serious decision to make regarding the future of your marriage.

For a counselor nearest you, call Community Information at 833-3430. Don't put this off, start now and good luck. P.S. For all other readers who might be considering marriage and feel that love conquers all problems—reread the above letter.

Dear Carol,

I know someone who has a habit of asking me how much I paid for a specific item. If I tell her, she (with great glee) tells me how or where I could have purchased it for less, or that she has one just like it that she got for half that price. If I don't tell her, she plays a guessing game about the price, sort of a monetary twenty questions. She does not stop until she has her information. Then she goes through her routine as always. I do not feel it is always necessary or appropriate to discuss price. What should I do to let her know that?

No Sale

Dear No Sale,

Don't be manipulated by rudeness. It is in very poor taste to ask the price of anything unless, of course, you happen to be buying it. Next time she pulls this stunt on you just look at her with an expression of puzzlement on your face and say "I really can't understand why you would want to know or why I would ever want to tell you." If that doesn't work and she is thick skinned enough to need more, just tell her no, you will not tell her the price. Rudeness does not always deserve politeness.

U.S. leadership declines

By EDWIN FEULNER

Since similar warnings from our own shores have been largely ignored for years, there is little reason for me to believe U.S. policy makers will learn from something being said in London.

Yet this new voice, expressing alarm over the buildup and deployment by the Soviets of the largest, most modern naval fleet in the world, is one that demands our immediate and careful attention.

Admiral of the Fleet, Lord Peter Hill-Norton, is one of the Free World's most distinguished military analysts. A former British Chief of Defense Staff, who later served as Chairman of the NATO Military committee, Lord Hill-Norton feels that the U.S. and even NATO are no longer capable (or willing) to meet the threat of the Soviet's global navy.

What's needed for the job is a global "grand design" binding together the NATO countries, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, some of the oil-producers, and some South American nations.

Lord Hill-Norton notes in his study, published by the respected Institute for the Study of Conflict in London, that the Soviet Union has taken de facto command of the seas in just a short period of time — about 15 years.

Ten years from now, with the West's fleet continuing to age and little being done to reverse this dangerous trend, the Soviet command will be that much more pronounced.

His observations come at a time when experts on our own side of the Atlantic, most notably John Spittler, President of the Navy League of the United States, see present Administration maritime policies as so feeble that we run the risk of "decimating U.S. maritime power."

In an open letter to President Carter, appearing in the current issue of the authoritative Sea Power Magazine, Spittler notes that the Administration's recently submitted 1981 defense budget calls for drastic cuts in the Navy's ship-building program, and in aircraft and weapons procurement; does away with all funding for new amphibious assault ships; and slashes much-needed research and development. The naval aircraft program, Spittler says, is cut back "to a level well below the current rate at which the Navy loses aircraft in peacetime operations."

It's all very scary. In what I personally interpret as another sign that the West is losing confidence in America's ability to lead, Lord Hill-Norton invokes Pax Britannica, and suggests that the United Kingdom "take the lead" in building this new sea alliance.

"There can be little doubt, surely, that our collective planning eye must now be shifted from the land-air confrontation in Europe to the steadily increasing risks to all of 'us' on and over and under the world's oceans; ... this in turn, demands a determined maritime strategy with the sea and air and amphibious forces adequate in quality and sufficiently numerous to guarantee our lifelines," he writes.

"A task of this scope and scale can only be undertaken by a joint or collective approach, and it would be simpler, more elegant and more likely to succeed were NATO to become the heart of such a larger enterprise."

"... The military elements would be neither out of financial nor technical reach, and such political difficulties as there might be (and they will certainly arise) could equally certainly be overcome if the determination to do so were there."

While there seems little determination on this side of the Atlantic to meet the challenge, perhaps an eminent British authority like Lord Hill-Norton will convince us to proceed full speed ahead.

(Feulner is president of The Heritage Foundation, a Washington-based public policy research organization.)

Reflections

'Just baby and me...'

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

My kids are always figuring out ways to earn money and if they don't hurry and grow up and all get married, I am going to be too tired to enjoy old age.

Our youngest kid has a few hours to spare from her school work, and because she eats money, devised a fascinating way to make it. She baby-sits.

Now every mother knows that baby sitters are invaluable and when my daughter put the ad in the paper I was proud of her, until I read the ad.

"Baby-sitting at my house. Mature adult always in residence."

I found out that the mature adult meant me.

As I write this I have two little tots, barely toddling, tied to my chair, lest they get away before their mommies come and pick them up. My kid was real excited when she got the two calls and assured me she could handle two infants as easily as one.

"Besides, Mom, you are always here." I told her I was not a babysitter, that I didn't need any money just now, and I was not available, EVER.

"Cool it mom. These babies are MY responsibility."

And so at 8:30 this morning two mothers beamingly deposited their little ones with bags of diapers, and toys and long lists of instructions. While my arms were filled with the baby stuff, I was shrieking up the stairs for my kid to get out of bed. Her job was here. She didn't hear a thing.

Tying the babies to the sofa I went up to my kid's room, pulled the covers back and yelled. She just mumbled and pulled the covers back up over her head. The babies began to shriek downstairs, and George (our dog) barked furiously. I raced down the stairs determined to save those babies from the dog's sharp teeth, but he had gotten hold of one of their stuffed toys, instead, and was tearing away at that.

Untying the little ones I lugged both of them upstairs and dumped them in the middle of sleeping princess. This filled them with glee and they began crawling all over her, poking in her ears and her mouth and her eyes. Naturally this made her mad.

"Can't a person get any sleep around here?" she shouted.

"You advertised to babysit. Your job is here."

"Well, gee, mom, you'd think you could watch them, knowing how late I was out last night, and how tired I am."

I steered my heart and told her I was doing no babysitting. Closing the door tight behind me I heard her say, "Gee, how selfish can you get?"

I was liking myself pretty much for being firm. It has taken me a good many years to learn that firmness can be kindness, and I was smirking as I drew up my chair to the typewriter.

I plunged right into my writing, writing with witty abandon. I didn't hear the door open and I was unaware of an intrusion until I felt something climbing up my legs.

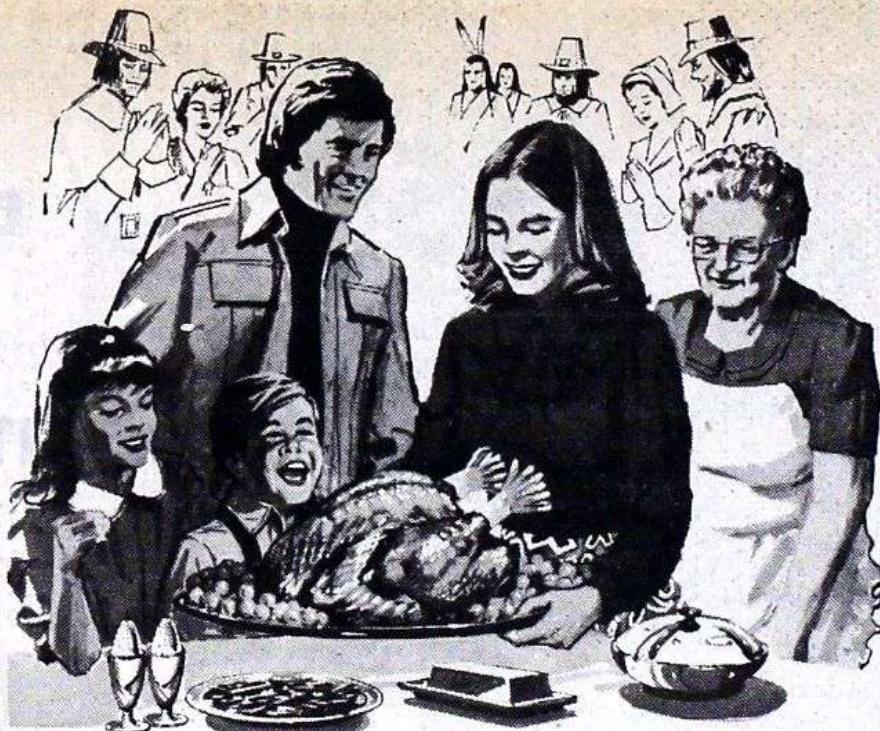

Looking down I saw two little curly heads. "Want up, want up," and the smiles almost won me.

"Hey," I shouted. "These kids are YOUR responsibility."

"Oh, mom," she stuck her head in the door. I noticed she had on her coat. "I left my curling iron over at Margaret's. Watch those kids will you, while I run and get it?" That is why I have two babies tied to my chair, and that is why one daughter is going to find another way to earn money. Just as soon as I can catch her long enough to be firm about it.

KIM HAMMONS

AARON GREGORY

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Thirteen hard-working, team-minded high school athletes have earned the distinct honor of joining the elite Associated Newspapers' All-Area Class B grid squad.

The roster includes a pair of quarterbacks — Kim Hammons (Inkster) and Aaron Gregory (Cherry Hill) along with flanker Thad Forman (Inkster), and runningbacks Randy Frederick (Cherry Hill), Mike Johnson (Cherry Hill) and fullback Bob Bokor (New Boston Huron).

Picked for the elite line are Eric Crouch (Inkster), and David Reid (Dearborn Heights Robichaud). The tackles are Joe Rice (New Boston Huron) and Jeff Hannenberg (Cherry Hill), while the guard positions are held down by Earl Taylor (Inkster) and David Teague (New Boston Huron).

Cherry Hill's Gary Bilek anchors the line, handling the center chores.

HAMMONS is a passing wizard. He lifted the Vikings out of the ashes into respectability with his pinpoint aerial attack and helped to provide the winning spirit that paved the way to a third place finish

Tradition, gridders & coaches

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

It is Monday morning. The pressure is on to meet the deadline. Three young, good-looking, wide-eyed football players from New Boston Huron stroll past the sports desk, glance over at a photo montage of past sports personalities decorating the board. One of the trio asks:

"Our coach said we should come down here to get our photos taken."

"Follow the yellow brick road," I reply. "The photographer is waiting for you in the back room."

Will they all show up? I wonder.

A few seconds later, five worthy representatives from Cherry Hill — Gary Bilek, Jeff Hannenberg, Aaron Gregory, Randy Frederick and Mike Johnson show up. They glance at the photo board, pointing out previous prep stars, players whose footsteps and shoes they have filled.

This group collides with the kids from New Boston and they exchange greetings. Soon, Inkster High's candidates — Earl Taylor, Kim Hammons (and, please there is no 'D' in Hammons), Thaddeus Forman (and no 'E' in Forman) show up.

"Are you Mr. Mooradian?" one of the lads says. I nod in the affirmative. "Well, Crouch can't make it. We couldn't get a hold of him."

What can you say? At least we have 11 of the 13 accounted for. "Here's Reid," says someone in the bunch. That's David Reid, Robichaud's contribution to All-Area.

Twelve out of thirteen, guess I lose another bet. Some smart aleck reporter in this office said "no way will all 13 players show up because you didn't inform them soon enough and Monday is a school day."

I informed this reporter that he didn't know our coaches and the tradition associated with All-Area.

I was almost ready to pay off the small wager when this young man walked in and announced: "My name is Eric Crouch. Coach James..."

All accounted for.

There's nothing like tradition. And coaches like Jerry Pawloski, Arnice James, Tom LaBeau and Robert Yauck who help make this job one of the best in the world.

And, before we get down to work to pick the All-Area Class A football team, let's get rid of some of the odds and ends.

Dear Mr. Mooradian,

Would you please publish this letter?

It is a beautiful sun shining November morning. The air is brisk, and the smell of leaves are in the air.

It is a little quieter than usual in our home this Saturday morning, for it is the day after the big game! Last night, Wayne Memorial challenged John Glenn in their annual football contest and again faced defeat.

I know this game is played each and every year, but for our family this year was different. This year, we have a son playing for Wayne High. The whole week before the game everyone was excited and anxious for Friday night to come, and finally it was kick off time and the game was underway. What a terrific and exciting game that was!!

The teams were superb. Not only in their playing ability but off the field as well. Good sportsmanship was shown by all. These young men warmed my heart as they tearfully congratulated each other. Some of them being very close friends and even neighbors playing against each other.

It was a very emotional time for Wayne High and an exciting time for John Glenn. WE ARE PROUD OF EACH AND EVERYONE on both teams and CONGRATULATE THEM and their COACHES on a beautiful night of Football 1979.

Sincerely,
A WAYNE HIGH BOOSTER

in the Suburban Athletic Conference. (Pre-season predictions had inaccurately concluded that Coach Arnice James' team would finish last in the five-team league.)

"Kim has an excellent attitude to go along with his intelligence," said Coach James. "In fact, he's one of the smartest players I have ever coached. He called most of the plays."

Hammons connected on 12 touchdown passes and scored three TDs on options. He passed for over 600 yards and was given all-state consideration by the wire services.

GREGORY, a versatile athlete, is slim and slick in the backfield where he also displayed a "very strong throwing arm, in fact, Aaron has the strongest throwing arm of any quarterback I have ever coached," said Coach Jerry Pawloski. "When he rolls out of the pocket he puts a lot of pressure on the defense. Unfortunately, he was injured in our seventh game."

Aaron doubled in the defensive backfield where he was credited with five interceptions. In one game alone (against Taylor Kennedy) he collected nine solo tackles and five assists.

"It shows the versatility of this athlete," Pawloski added.

BOKOR is also a two-way performer. He was deadly with the ball and played havoc on ballcarrier as a linebacker. Bob amassed 743 yards in 120 carries and scored 10 of the Huron's 16 touchdowns. He also caught seven passes for 70 yards.

"Bokor didn't play offense much the first two games," Huron Coach Tom LaBeau explained. "When Manderville (Tim) was injured we were forced to do some adjusting in the backfield. And Bob came through for us. He is just a punishing runner. An excellent and very coachable athlete."

FREDERICK is a deceptively fast ballcarrier. He came up with three sterling punt returns that fans are still talking about. Randy ran one back for a 90-yard touchdown, then as if to prove it wasn't a fluke, the following week he meandered for another 90-yard touchdown return. He capped the year with a 60-yard return for his third TD.

"Randy has good speed," Coach Pawloski said. "And in the open field he's tough to get a shot at. He also was our leading ballcarrier."

Frederick finished the season with six touchdowns, 500 yards rushing in 65 carries for 4.0 yards per attempt.

FORMAN is an excellent college prospect and a dedicated football player, according to Coach James. He scored three TDs, was named to all-conference after rushing for 212 yards in 14 carries. He also doubled as a safety where he intercepted three passes.

"Forman, in my opinion, will make it with some college," said Coach James. "He has a good attitude and because he's a dedicated athlete he learns quickly. He'll give you 100 percent all the time."

JOHNSON ran for 450 yards in 60 carries and scored seven touchdowns and is one of two serious candidates for the Spartans' Most Valuable Player Award. (Frederick is the other). A power runner who was "Mr. Inside," Johnson, only a junior could be counted on to get the yardage in crucial situations.

"Mike could be the best running back in Cherry Hill history," said Pawloski who has coached at the Inkster-based high school for the past 13 years. "He had a lot of leg strength and is a tremendous prospect for next year."

CROUCH was the Vikings' leading receiver, Hammons' favorite target. He hauled in 15 passes that led to seven touchdowns and three conversions. An excellent cager as well, Eric is a strong 6-1, 185-pound senior who, according to his coach, "could go further in football than in basketball."

"He just does everything well," James said. "The kid has so much athletic potential and I'm sure fans will be hearing a lot more about him when he begins his college career."

REID is Robichaud's lone representative to this year's elite squad. A 6-1, 185-pound junior tight end who also played linebacker for Coach Bob Yauck's Bulldogs, Dave has started in 18 consecutive games.

"Reid has a good pair of hands," Yauck said, "and he's a very versatile athlete. He can play many different positions on offense, and he was our leading tackler on defense."

An honor student, Reid caught 18 passes for 210 yards and three touchdowns.

"We had a dismal year," Yauck said, "but no one can blame Dave for it. He was one of the very bright spots in our year of frustrations."

RICE also is a two-way performer at tackle. During a hard-fought season, this 221-pound, 6-3 junior accounted for 34 solo tackles and 54 assists and he received credit for seven sacks of the quarterback. Joe also rated high in efficiency blocking. He was one of a few players who were named to the all Huron Conference team on defense as well as offense.

"The coaches in our league agreed that Rice was one of two linemen who were recognized as outstanding," said Coach LaBeau. "If we had a few more like him, life would have been easier this season."

HANNENBERG was the strong-side tackle on the Spartan line who had the responsibility of opening up the gaps for his runningbacks. Considered one of the best-if not the best-blockers on the team, Jeff held down the center spot for a couple of years before Pawloski decided to switch him to a tackle.

"Most of our running plays were contingent upon Jeff doing his job," Pawloski said. "And he was the kind of no-excuse player who worked hard at what he did. The yards our ballcarriers got were because of him."

Osterberg is top grid panelist

Bert Osterberg, the precocious prognosticator, has done it again! The dapper-dressed account executive won the football prep predictions for the third time in four years with a .750 percentage in exactly 100 games.

Osterberg's 75-25 record was just one game better than Jim Bradley, who ended with a 74-26 slate for .740. Although Osterberg led the entire season after his opening week of 9 right and 1 wrong, Bradley closed the gap to just one game difference going into the final week.

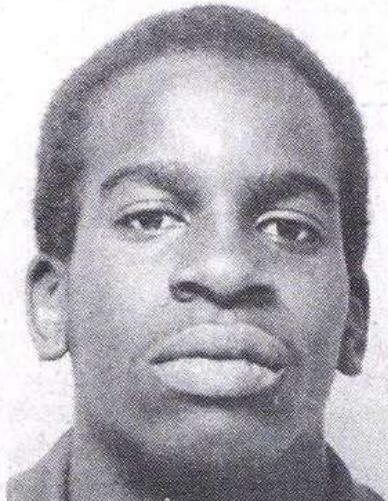

Bradley finished the last four weeks with consecutive 9-3, 9-2, 9-2 and 9-2 records, but Osterberg's five-game lead after the fourth week was sufficient to give the veteran

Associated Newspaper employee his second consecutive win and third in the last four years.

An interesting sidelight to the outcome was Osterberg's one-game lead going into the final week of selections. His 66-23 mark was one game better than Bradley's 65-24 — with 11 games to pick on the last weekend of high school football.

The two agreed to make their choices secretly and after Osterberg marked his winners, he asked Bradley one-by-one, which teams were his picks for the final week. Osterberg read each game from one through 11 and asked Bradley which one he chose. After Bradley had given him entire 11 choices, Oster-

Glenn goes to league swim meet perfect

Rockets breeze past North Farmington for 5th straight Northwest triumph

Using its depth to its greatest advantage, Westland John Glenn carved out a crucial 93-76 victory over North Farmington, and will take a perfect 5-0 record into this week's Northwest Suburban Conference girls' swimming championships.

Coach Jim Lawrence's swimmers will have to finish third or lower to jeopardize their title rights.

"North Farmington and Redford Union will have the frontrunners at the championships," Lawrence admitted. "But we'll have the complete team. I feel, because of our depth, we will do exceptionally well."

Redford Union, the defending champ, will play host to the five other league affiliates. The championships got underway last night (Nov. 14) with the preliminaries. The finals are scheduled for 7 p.m. on Thursday (Nov. 15).

North Farmington, which has won a handful of conference titles before surrendering the title to R.U. A year ago, managed to sweep seven of the 11 first places against Glenn. Glenn countered with seven seconds and an equal number of third places in the important meet.

"If we had lost this one, it would have forced us into a position where we would have had to win the league meet in order to get a share of the championship," Coach Lawrence said. "Against North, it was our depth that came through."

Janet Borgerding picked up Glenn's initial first place when she compiled 190 points on the diving boards. Then, Netherlands' gift to Glenn, Karin Stover turned in a 1:09.4 to win the 100-yard butterfly, while Sandy Hawkins was clocked in the winning time of 1:19.6 for the 100-yard breaststroke.

Lawrence put together a team made up of Mary Wilber, Cathy White, Karen Scarborough and Nancy Ostlund to win the 400-yard freestyle relay.

Wayne chases Monroe for title

Wyandotte to host Great Lakes 8 Conference girl tankers

Wayne Memorial tuned up for the 1979 Great Lakes 8 Conference girls' swimming and diving championships with a lopsided 119-53 victory over Wyandotte.

The victory will enable Coach Jim McPartlin and the Wayne tankers to go into the conference championships with a 6-1 won-lost record and a chance to salvage a part of the championship.

"We're going to have to beat Monroe to get a co-championship," Coach McPartlin said, who added that he sees his team chances of emerging ahead of Monroe at the league meet as "good".

"I think we have the depth to do it," McPartlin said. "Since Monroe is undefeated, we have to finish first to share the title."

Wyandotte will greet the eight-team conference today (Thurs., Nov. 15) beginning with the preliminaries at 4 p.m. The finals will also be staged at Wyandotte High, starting at 7 p.m. on Friday.

The Zebras made short work of the Bruins who eluded a shutout of first places thanks to Theresa O'Brien's performance on the diving boards.

Wayne took the other ten first places with the Batterson sisters accounting for two firsts each and also competing on winning relay teams.

Catherine Batterson, after helping the Zebras win the 200-yard medley relay, came back to capture the 200-yard individual medley (2:34.4) and the 100-yard backstroke (1:08.5). The three other members of the medley team are Mary Jo Mason, Lori Miles and Lisa Mondock.

Gretchen Batterson claimed the 200-yard freestyle (2:15.2) and also the 500-yard freestyle (6:04.4). She combined with Ann Walter, Lori Ford and Lacy Lopez to win the 400-yard freestyle relay in 4:21.8.

Members of the Wayne Karate Studio will be heading south next week to take part in the Southeastern Tae Kwon Do tournament which is scheduled for Cullman, Alabama on Nov. 17.

Instructor Ron Rose's lineup will include blue belter Tom Ahijian, yellow belter Dave Bennett, and black belter Moe Pulido. Debbie Ison will compete in the women's division of the black belt.

The studio recently moved from its Wayne facility to 35611 Michigan

13 grididders named to All-Area team

Class B's finest show plenty of versatility

TEAGUE is a rugged, solidly built 224-pound guard who looks as if he is ready for college competition right now. But scouts will have to wait until next year for this 16-year-old junior. Look at his credentials: he had 57 solo tackles and 89 assists; five fumble recoveries, one blocked punt which he returned for a touchdown and three sacks of the quarterback. A tri-captain, David is considered the best all-around gridder on Huron's squad. "You can't say enough about this ball player," LaBeau added. "Obviously I'm very pleased that he'll be returning to the team a year from now."

TAYLOR "loves to hit." "He's a very serious-minded athlete," says Coach James, "and if he puts some weight on he's going to be a good college player." (Earl weighs in at 170 and is 6-0).

With 56 unassisted and assisted tackles on the season, Earl managed to pounce on four fumbles, blocked a punt for a safety and sacked the quarterback for losses six times. He was also named to the all-conference team.

BILEK started all nine games at center for the Spartans who managed to come back from a slow start to become a title threat late in the season.

"Gary is one of the quickest linemen coming off of the football,"

said Pawloskii. "We were able to trap up-the-middle with him because of his quickness. He also provided us with the basis for the passing game in our drop-back series."

Bilek put in time on defense where he was the defensive signal caller at middle guard.

On defense

Phil Pitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pitt, played at a defensive end position for the Trojans of Northwestern College in Watertown, Wisconsin. Pitt is a 6'2", 200-pound freshman who is a graduate of Lutheran Seminary in Saginaw. Phil and his parents reside in Wayne.

Class 'A' gridders are next in line

It was action as depicted by the photo above that helped make the 1979 high school football season an exciting one. Though that season ended for all of the area teams a week ago, there is another important chapter to be written, but this one by The Associated Newspapers' Sports Staff. We'll be going over facts and figures to select the coveted All-Area prep football team. Above, that's Wayne Memorial's Ricky Rogers (dark jersey) being nailed by John Glenn's Rick Discher (12), Keith Zimmerman (65) and Joe Bielecki in a game that went down to the wire. Inkster's All-Star cagers pitted in benefit game

Can the basketball stars of Inkster High's 1960s teams beat a squad comprised of outstanding cagers who played in the decade of the 1970s? Local sports fans will get a chance to see some legendary players in action next Wednesday night at Inkster High School in a double-header bill. Starting at 5 p.m., the game will feature a half-time feature attraction as the present crop of Inkster High School's varsity squad tangle in an inter-squad game. Fans will also be able to get a

Korte starts at EMU

Mark Korte, who earned letters in basketball, baseball and football while at Wayne Memorial, stated last week at quarterback for Eastern Michigan University.

The freshman QB made his inaugural collegiate career start in place of Mid-American Conference total offense leader, Scott Davis who is on the injury list.

Korte managed to lead the Hurons to a 10-7 halftime lead over the defending champ, Ball State, before dropping a 28-10 decision. The Cardinals scored twice in the third quarter and once in the fourth to make up the difference.

Korte, playing for Davis who missed the contest with a shoulder injury, directed the EMU offense to score on the first possession of the game, scampering the final 10 yards for a touchdown.

Rich Hanschu, another familiar name in the area — he's a former Plymouth Salem star — kicked the extra point. Hanschu also added a 41-yard field goal with 3:24 left in the half after Ball State scored in the first quarter, and Eastern had a 10-7 vantage point.

"We played a real good first half and I thought Korte did a fine job for his first start," said EMU coach Mike Stock. "I think we surprised Ball State in the first half but they are too good a football team not to come back and they really stopped us in the second half."

Ladd Skelly, Cheryl Batzer wed in candlelight service

Emmanuel Lutheran Church in Ypsilanti was the setting October 20 for the sundown ceremony which joined Cheryl L. Batzer and Ladd M. Skelly in holy matrimony.

The Rev. Carl Leach presided at the double ring rite before some 160 close friends and relatives. Jon Batzer, the bride's brother, played the trumpet processional, Purcell's "Trumpet Voluntary", and their cousin, Paul Gruetter sang "O Perfect Love", "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Wedding Prayer".

The bride, escorted to the sanctuary by her father, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Batzer of 119 Clarence St., Belleville. Her bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David M. M. Skelly of Woburn, Mass.

Walking down an aisle aglow with candlelight, the bride was gowned in soft white chiffon fashioned with a mushroom blouse bodice accented with a high scalloped illusion neckline of silk Venise lace. Tiny pleats formed the waist and full sleeves on the toe-touching dress which terminated in a circular chapel sweep.

Completing her bridal finery were a floor-length veil of silk illusion held by a Juliet cap and a colonial bouquet of white sweetheart roses, daisies, daisy mums, carnations and baby's breath.

As her cousin's matron of honor, Kim Raymond of Clio wore a dusty rose gown in formal length and carried an arrangement of dusty rose and white daisies, carnations, mums and baby's breath in colonial style.

Identical outfits were worn by bridesmaids, Jana Lindholm of Livonia and Ellen Sutter of Huntington, W. Va., both college friends of the bride.

The bridegroom chose his brother,

Gordon Skelly of Las Vegas, Nev. to serve as best man. The corps of groomsmen included Rick Hartmann of Columbus, Ohio, a college friend of the bridegroom; Jon Batzer, the bride's brother who was home from Ferris State for the occasion; and Christopher Fogle of Columbia, Ohio and Kevin Langholz of Pittsburgh, Pa., both college friends of the bridegroom.

As guests departed from the church, Mrs. Batzer received in a floor-length gown of cranberry lace over qiana and Mrs. Skelly, the bridegroom's mother, in pink chiffon.

A sit-down dinner and dancing followed at the Campus Inn of Ann Arbor where the bridegroom's Kappa Sigma Upsilon fraternity brothers serenaded the bride.

The young couple have taken up residence in Columbus, Ohio near Grove City where the bridegroom teaches eighth grade math and reading at Finland Middle School. Both he and his bride are graduates of Capital University, she earning a nursing degree and he a bachelor of arts in education and German. He also is affiliated with Delta Phi Alpha, National Honorary German Fraternity.

Prior to her marriage the new Mrs. Skelly worked as a registered nurse at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Hosted by the David Skellys, the rehearsal dinner was held at The Grainery in Ypsilanti.

MR. AND MRS. LADD M. SKELLY

Denise Ostrowski marries

MR. AND MRS. JOHN SZMANSKY

The newly wed John Szmansky honeymooned for one week in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania before taking up residence on Mott Road in Canton.

Denise Ostrowski became Mrs. Szmansky during an afternoon ceremony conducted by The Rev. Raymond Skoney at St. Anthony's Catholic Church. Some 150 guests witnessed the exchange of vows and wedding bands which united the daughter of George and Elise Ostrowski of 44626 Lake Crest Dr., Belleville, and the son of Ed and Carrie Szmansky of Edwards Road, Belleville.

The bride's cousin, Stanley Bialach, played the processional and recessional on the trumpet while a friend, Sam Plaza, provided organ music.

Approaching the altar with her father, Denise appeared in a silk organza creation fashioned with a pearl-studded lace bodice, sweetheart neckline and long clear sleeves frosted with lace appliques. Her A-line skirt drifted into a chapel train bordered with a pleated flounce.

Her mantilla veil, cut in mid-back length, was outlined with scalloped lace and completing her ensemble was a cascade of white roses and stephanotis.

Sleeveless burgundy qiana gowns were worn by the three bridal attendants: Gail Ostrowski, who came from Clearwater, Fla. to be her sister's honor attendant, and Lisa Pellicchia and Lisa Chen of Belleville, both high school friends of the bride. They wore combs with sweetheart roses and baby's breath in their hair and carried single long-stemmed pink roses.

Tim Potts of Westland served as best man and ushers were the bride's brother, Mark Ostrowski of Clearwater, Fla. and Larry Kelen of Wayne.

The Romulus Progressive Club was reserved for the reception which followed. Some 350 relatives and friends were greeted by Mrs. Ostrowski in a rust gown with a pleated skirt and the bridegroom's mother in pink chiffon. Both were honored with corsages of roses and carnations to match their outfits.

Both young people are graduates of Belleville High School. The new Mrs. Szmansky holds an associate degree in business administration from Schoolcraft College where she affiliated with Phi Theta Kappa sorority and now works at the J.L. Hudson Company in Briarwood.

Her husband is employed at the Ford Motor Company's Wayne Truck Plant.

The bride's parents entertained at the rehearsal party at their home on Lake Crest Drive.

Mercy Center setting for Griffith-Gergosian vows

Wedding vows were exchanged between Mary Gergosian, the daughter of Deacon and Mrs. Edward Gergosian of Royal Oak, and Thomas Griffith, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Griffith of Belleville, during a double ring ceremony Oct. 6 at Mercy Center in Farmington Hills.

The ecumenical service was conducted by The Rev. Gary Shulte of St. Edmond's Church; the bride's father, Deacon Gergosian; her Godfather, Brother Leonard Leary of Phoenix, Ariz., and The Rev. Robert McCreight of the Belleville Presbyterian Church.

Guitar music for the occasion was played by Mark Geovjian.

Mary selected for her wedding day a formal gown designed with a sweetheart neckline and long tapered sleeves. The little fitted bodice secured her lace-trimmed pleated skirt which drifted into a chapel train as she walked.

Delicate lace accented her silk illusion veil which was cut in fingertip length while a colonial bouquet of burgundy and white blooms completed her bridal attire.

The bridal coterie, headed by the bride's sister, Joanne Gergosian of Bangor, Me., included Anne Griffith of Belleville, the bridegroom's sister; Nancy Ifflander of St. Louis, Mo.; Kris Vander Vreken of East Lansing, and Mary Walch of Southfield.

The quintet appeared in burgundy qiana frocks with pleated skirts falling from spaghetti strap bodices covered by chiffon capes. Their bouquets, like the bride's, were comprised of burgundy and white flowers.

The bridegroom chose his brother, Denny Griffith of Columbus, O., to serve as best man. Others on the esquire side were Brian Crowe of Huntington Beach, Calif.; Philip Feldman of Marina Del Rey, Calif.; and Edward Gergosian Jr. of San Diego and William Gergosian of Royal Oak, both brothers of the bride.

At the reception which followed at Mercy Center, the bride's mother greeted the 150 guests in a pink crepe de chine gown to which she pinned her green orchid. A white orchid accented the royal blue crepe de chine gown which Mrs. Griffith chose for her son's wedding.

Following a week-long cruise to the Bahamas, the newlyweds returned to the West Coast to take up residence at 34 Elm St., San Carlos, Calif.

Both Tom and Mary are graduates of Michigan State University's restaurant management school. At present he is managing Charlie Brown's Restaurant in Sunnyvale and she is working at Monterey Jack's in Mountainview.

The bridegroom's parents played host at the rehearsal dinner at their home on Merle Court in Belleville the evening before the wedding.

It's bazaar time!

Physicians' placement service set

The need for more physicians in Belleville and many other communities has been brought to the attention of 506 young physicians registered with the Michigan Health Council Physician Placement Service.

The Health Council has just published a new "Roster of Opportunities" which lists more than 130 openings in the state for physicians.

"The roster is in the mail to young physicians in hospital residency training programs in 12 Michigan counties, to physicians coming out of the military or completing medical missionary projects, and to others who are interested in coming to Michigan from other states," explained C. Allen Payne, M.D., MHC president.

Of the many openings listed, 99 locations wanted family physicians.

In addition to specific private practice openings in the roster, many community recruitment committees are "advertising" for M.D. and D.O. physicians to come to their communities. Openings also listed are with the Michigan Department of Mental Health and the Michigan Department of Corrections.

This year, for the first time, the roster lists 37 counties and specific service areas as designated by federal government as health manpower shortage areas.

The HEW shortage areas are communities where National Health Service Corps scholarship winners may fulfill service obligations.

In addition to opportunities listed for physicians, the Roster of Opportunities lists positions open for physician assistants and nurse practitioners. The Roster also includes residency openings, emergency room openings and public health and preventive medicine openings in Michigan.

The Physician Placement Service is operated by the MHC. There is no charge for physicians or communities to use the Placement Service.

The MHC issues bulletins of new opportunities every 45 days to the physicians registered with the Physician Placement Service. MHC also sends staff specialists into communities to advise on recruitment procedures.

VA sets up 2 cemeteries for veterans

Fort Gillem, Ga., and Fort Custer, Mich., have been chosen as sites for two national cemeteries to be developed by the Veterans Administration.

These new national cemeteries are part of a greatly expanded system undertaken several years ago by the Veterans Administration to assure continued burial space for veterans who request such interment. This brings to seven the total of new cemeteries started by VA since enactment of the National Cemetery Act in 1973.

The Fort Custer site is an unused portion of an active Army reserve training center located near Battle Creek, about midway between Detroit and Chicago.

It will serve as the regional national cemetery in Standard Federal Region V, comprising the Great Lakes Area of the United States. The region includes Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and

Angel power

Christmas is a special time, so this year the Crowley's Department Stores and the Mental Health Association in Michigan are presenting a special Christmas Angel to focus attention on the creative work of emotionally disturbed children.

Children from four metro-Detroit centers for the emotionally disturbed have designed the Christmas angels for Crowley's 1979 holiday presentation. The angels have now taken flight onto Christmas banners, posters, gift wrap, shopping bags, store trim and all holiday promotions.

The angels also have become the theme of an entire shop of angel items, including a delicate ornament. All customers will be able to purchase this ornament, along with gift wrap, cards and other related items. Proceeds from the sale of these items will be donated by Crowley's to the Mental Health Association in Michigan.

The association, in turn, will distribute this money to the children's centers who supplied their art, time and love — Fairlawn Center (Pontiac), Lafayette Clinic (Detroit), York Woods Center (Ypsilanti) and Hawthorn Center (Northville).

Studio set to stage 'Godspell'

"Godspell," a musical revue based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew, will open at the Wayne State University Studio Theatre downstairs at the Hilberry, on Nov. 25 at 7:30 p.m. Additional performances are Nov. 26 through 28 and Dec. 3 through 5 at 8:30 p.m.; Dec. 1, at 2 p.m. and Dec. 2 at 7:30 p.m.

"Godspell" written in 1970 by John-Michael Tebelak as a project for his master's degree at Carnegie-Mellon University. It has since become one of the most popular musicals of this decade, having been produced both on and off Broadway, adapted into a successful film version, and at one time performed by more than 16 professional companies around the world.

It has been called one of the most innovative plays in modern theatre, and combines many theatrical devices — pantomime, improvisation, vaudeville antics and minstrel show routines. The soft-rock score by Stephen Schwartz, composer of the hit musical "Pippin" (to be produced at the Bonstelle Theatre later this season), includes such familiar songs as "Day by Day," "By My Side" and "Turn Back, Oh Man." "Godspell" is directed by William P. Ward, with costumes by Kevin Alberts, settings by Curt P. Vandenberg, choreography by Susan Panek, and musical direction by Phillip J. Micheal. The cast includes William and Shari Akey of Livonia, Deborah Barwinski of Dearborn Heights, Tom Denolf of St. Clair Shores, Johanna Marie Mueller of Milford, Jeffery E. Williams of Adrian, Clara Onie Smith of Garden City, Richard A. Schrot of Bloomfield Hills, Edward M. Nahant of Royal Oak, and Renate Sheldon, Tom Spiroff, Paul Maisano and Kathy Brant, all of Detroit. The proceeds from this production will aid the Blakely Scholarship Fund for undergraduate theatre students.

Steinbeck's 'Of Mice' opens at MB

The Meadow Brook Theatre's Artistic Director Terence Kilburn has announced the cast for John Steinbeck's gripping drama, "Of Mice and Men," which has opened a 4-week run on the campus of Oakland University near Rochester.

The story "Of Mice and Men" deals with a pair of migrant farmers who stick together although they have nothing in common but their dream of a piece of land of their own. Lennie is a retarded giant of a man who is totally dependent on the intelligent good-natured George. Lennie's strength is often a source of trouble for the pair as they move from farm to farm. In spite of the brutal working conditions on the farms, there is a subdued tenderness in the longing of these tough farmhands for a place of their own.

Meadow Brook newcomers David Graff and Michael Medeiros play the roles of Lennie and George respectively. Graf most recently appeared in the McCarter Theatre's production of "A Comedy of Errors" and ABC-TV's daytime series, "The Edge of Night." Medeiros just completed filming a PBS-TV special, "The Molders of Troy." This past summer he created the role of Lennie on the CBS-TV series, "Search for Tomorrow."

Other members of the cast new to Meadow Brook audiences include David Jeffrey, Gail Bryson, John W. Hardy and Eric Uhler. Tom Spackman and A.D. Cover, who just appeared in the season's opener, "The School for Scandal," will also be seen in the cast.

Performances are scheduled at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 6 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Saturdays, 6:30 p.m. Sundays and 2 p.m. on Wednesdays. The theatre is dark on Mondays.

Art institute 'shows off' ancient relief

Three recently-acquired reliefs from Persepolis (5th-4th century B.C.) now are displayed in the Detroit Institute of Arts, along with another relief of the same origin already in the collection.

The importance of these objects merited complete reinstallation of the museum's ancient Iranian art gallery (Gallery 205) by curator of Ancient Art William H. Peck and his staff. Together, the four form one of the nation's finest small groups of Persepolis reliefs.

Acquired with funds raised by the Antiquaries of the Founders Society and from the Robert H. Tannahill Foundation Fund, the three reliefs date from the powerful Achaemenid Empire founded by Cyrus the Great, which ruled the entire Middle East for three centuries. Persepolis was its ceremonial and cult capitol, begun by Darius the Great, completed by Xerxes and Artaxerxes. Here kings received New Year Festival tribute from throughout the vast Empire.

The Art Institute's polished grey limestone reliefs once decorated stairways and banqueting halls at Persepolis. They represent Persian court servants bringing food to the royal feast, a Persian spearman and a Persian court official with staff ushering tribute bearers into the presence of the king. Influences from Assyria and Ionian Greece combine in the reliefs to form a court style which is uniquely Iranian.

The Detroit Institute of Arts is open to the public Tuesday through Sunday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. It is closed Mondays and holidays.

Double ring vows solemnized at St. Stephen's

A 12-day honeymoon at Daytona Beach, Orlando and Walt Disney World in Florida followed the Sept. 1 marriage of Cheri Kormos of Belleville and Jeffery Bruce DeLong of Romulus.

White spider mums, pink carnations and baby's breath adorned the altar of St. Stephen's Catholic Church for the afternoon ceremony conducted by The Rev. Joseph Martinus of Ann Arbor.

The double ring rite joined the daughter of Albert and Sallyann Kormos of 39678 Willis Rd., Belleville, and the son of Lester and Maryalice DeLong of 124 N. 11th St., Elwood, Ind.

Organ music for the occasion was played by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Cassandra Kormos of Britton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a gown of sheer white organza, the empire bodice featuring a Queen Ann neckline and long puffed sleeves trimmed with Venise lace and seed pearls.

A little fitted crown of lace and seed pearly secured her silk illusion veil which was cut in walking length. Streamers from her grandmother's wedding bouquet of some 48 years ago were used to accent the colonial style bouquet of white carnations, pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath which the bride carried.

A special memento added to her bridal finery was the handkerchief which her God-mother, Mrs. Stephanie Box, had carried on her wedding day 35 years ago.

As her sister's maid of honor, Susan Kormos of Belleville, donned a petal pink lustre glow gown designed with a sleeveless blouson top with white Venise lace on the yoke. Her bouquet was comprised of a large purple orchid surrounded by greens.

Identical outfits were worn by the quartet of bridesmaids: Diane Dwizerwa of Allen Park; Joet Sherry of Belleville; Jennifer Retzinger of Mundelin, Ill., niece of the bridegroom; and Kris Kormos of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom.

Serving as candlebearers were two cousins of the bride, Maria and Eva Kormos of Romulus.

Five-year-old Jennifer Mienkewicz of Romulus, cousin of the bride, was flowergirl in a miniature version of the senior attendants' frocks. The basket she held was filled with carnations and daisies.

Michael Yantze, the bridegroom's nephew from Noblesville, Ind., carried out the role of ringbearer.

Best man Eric Schmidt of Amelia Island, Fla. headed up a corps of ushers which included Paul Cloyd of Denver, Colo.; Jerry Wagner of Belleville; Albie Kormos of Belleville, the bride's brother; Jay Retzinger of Mundelin, Ill., the bridegroom's nephew; and Henry Kormos of Romulus, the bride's cousin who served as miniature usher.

Mrs. Kormos chose for her daughter's wedding a royal blue knee-length gown of qiana with a cocoon cape and sequined bodice. Mrs. DeLong wore for the occasion a toe-touching pale blue qiana frock with a jacket-like overlay at the bodice. Both mothers were presented with corsages of pink carnations, red roses and baby's breath.

Some 300 guests attended the dinner-dance reception which followed at the PNA Hall.

On their return from Florida the newlyweds moved into the bridegroom's residence at 37815 Walnut Dr., Romulus.

A 1977 graduate of Belleville High School, the new Mrs. DeLong is employed at Down River Federal Savings and Loan Assoc., Allen Park Branch. Her husband is a 1972 alumnus of Wendell Wilkie High School in Elwood, Ind. and a 1976 graduate of Purdue University where he earned a degree in industrial management. He is now with the MCC Powers in Ferndale.

A poetic toast to D.H. Raymond Sr.

On the sixth of November in 'eighty-nine, old Belleville town was the place and time for a lusty lad whose name was "Darryl" to start a life that has no par'lel!

While in stature he's not too tall, he's loved by home folks one and all. With a cherry wit and ready smile, he's for "service above self" all the while!

He's served his country and city well. In business, lodge and church, his merits swell. While he traveled some and gained reknown, he had to return to his old "home town."

So a life-time of service has been his lot and his virtues and talents will ne'er be forgot. So let's raise a "toast" to a real swell guy and pray that good fortune never passes him by.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The above poem was written by Merrill Bird as a tribute to Darryl H. Raymond Sr. on his 90th birthday which was marked recently.)

"Why do I need a VIP box?"

Everyone in town needs a safe place to keep "Very Important Papers," or, as I call it, a "VIP Box."

Fortunately, our city has some mighty fine banks, and most have a variety of types and sizes of safety deposit boxes. You are able to store safely, without fear of fire or theft, your insurance policies, property titles, mortgage papers, confidential documents, jewels, and other precious possessions not used frequently.

The VIP Box is really one single collection point for your most valuable records, possessions — and instructions to the next of kin in case of your death. It is a good place to store a copy of your pre-planned funeral arrangements along with your will and other one-of-a-kind papers — and the cost is minimal.

Your own VIP Box is the safest place I know to store your life's records of success and security. If you don't have such a box, get one. You'll heave a sigh of relief when it's done — but don't procrastinate, do it soon. We constantly witness the problems of families who did not have such a storage place.

MUSICAL NOTES

by Doug Brown

The road to professional musical success is long and hard. Few people ever make it to the top. If you play a classical instrument and are interested in orchestral or solo success, plan on starting very early in life and spending a great deal of time practicing. If your interest is "popular" success, start a bit later perhaps, but there is a need to pack a lot of talent and creativity into the years spent pursuing musical goals.

Whether you are interested in music as a professional musician or wish to enjoy it as a form of relaxation make DOUG BROWN MUSIC, 9219 S. Wayne, Romulus, 941-8484 your headquarters for everything musical. We carry a full line of Lowry instruments and we will be happy to help you choose just the right one for your particular needs. In Ice Follies

Peggy Fleming comes to area

Eleven years ago she was the only American Gold Medal Winner in the 1968 Winter Olympic Games and an undefeated three-time world figure skating champion. She has been honing her technique ever since, in Shipstads & Johnson Ice Follies. Peggy Fleming returns to Ice Follies as a special guest star in the Detroit engagement at Olympia Stadium opening this week for 19 performances through Nov. 25. At 31 the radiant, green-eyed beauty has as much reason to be proud of her accomplishments as she had in 1968. She has polished her much-acclaimed professional competitive skills to high gloss of a dynamic, exciting performer who captivates audiences at every performance.

"I know that I've grown and matured," Ms. Fleming said. "I watched an old film of myself in competition, and I could see that my style wasn't fully developed yet. The form was there, but the fire was missing. I wasn't communicating my feeling to the audience. I feel now that I have matured and perfected my skating techniques."

As far as technique is concerned she eschews the gimmicks that are now standard equipment for many skaters, preferring instead to concentrate on the fundamentals, the compulsory school figures all students must learn as the foundation on which routines are built.

Her interest in skating was kindled at the age of nine when she went to a neighborhood rink near San Francisco to try out a pair of skates. Within 12 months she had won her first championship and was propelled into the long years of serious dedication and rigorous practice schedules that resulted in the perfection of her unmatched, ethereal, effortless style.

In 1965 the Fleming family moved to Colorado Springs, where she attended high school and Colorado College without ever letting up in her skating practice, culminating in the figure skating championships and the Olympic Gold Medal.

The private Peggy Fleming lives in Los Gatos, Calif., with her dermatologist husband Dr. Gregory Jenkins and their 2-year-old son, Andrew. She exercises regularly, excelling in tennis and swimming. Despite her concern about keeping her svelte figure she admits with a smile that macaroni is her favorite food. She also enjoys experimenting with new recipes in her spacious California kitchen.

Peggy Fleming bubbles with the energy and charm that have captivated audiences the world over and made her an enduring legend in the annals of skating history. Eleven years since her stunning Olympic victory she is still recognized everywhere for her superior and original magic on ice.

Mansion marks
holiday

One of Michigan's most breathtaking historic homes invites the public to help celebrate its golden anniversary and at the same time help preserve the magnificent structure for future generations. "A Golden Christmas at Meadow Brook Hall" is open Nov. 28, through Dec. 2, on the campus of Oakland University in Rochester, where major rooms of the 100-room Tudor-style mansion will be lavishly dressed in holiday finery for daily tours 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. (10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Wednesday). Proceeds from the annual Christmas walk are used for preservation of the hall, and all creative talents, floral decorations and production efforts are donated by florists, special exhibitors and volunteers from the Wayne-Oakland-Macomb area.

"This type of community support has made it possible for Meadow Brook Hall to survive as a major historic landmark at a time when many others are being demolished," said Mrs. Roger Smith, who with her husband is chairing the Christmas event. "The hall is one of the nation's finest and most carefully preserved examples of Tudor Revival architecture, and its inclusion this year in the National Register of Historic Sites gives us another reason to celebrate."

Meadow Brook Hall is the former home of Alfred and Matilda Dodge Wilson. She was the widow of auto pioneer John Dodge. Completed in 1929 at the cost of $4 million, the home still contains original furnishings and art works.

In addition to the Christmas tours, the hall is open to the public from 1 to 5 p.m. every Sunday year-round.

Entrance to the Hall is on Adams Road, one-third mile south of Walton Boulevard in Rochester. For further information call 377-3140.

Wisconsin, and contains a veteran population of more than 6 million.

The land on which the new cemeteries will be built is owned by the federal government. VA already owns a portion of the Fort Custer site and will receive the balance of it from the General Services Administration, which currently holds title to it.

VA's tentative schedule calls for both new cemeteries to be opened in late 1983.

Together, the seven new national cemeteries will contain 4,831 acres and provide approximately 2 million grave sites. The existing cemetery system contains space for approximately 2.5 million grave sites.

VA's takeover of the National Cemetery System in 1973 was followed by the first major expansion of the system in more than two decades.

The Fort Gillem and Fort Custer locations were chosen after an exhaustive review of many sites and includes environmental, access and land use considerations. Paramount among the factors weighed was the measurable density of veteran population in the two areas.

CPAs say

Credit costs depend on many factors

Credit has been called man's confidence in man — you promise to pay in the future for something you receive now. How much this convenience costs you depends on your character, your finances and your ability to repay. Lenders also are influenced by the money and other economic factors.

The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants say before buying on time or borrowing money in any other way, find out what the terms are. You should know not only the monthly charge, but also interest rates, any finance charge and how the interest and principal reductions are scheduled.

The CPAs suggest when comparing interest rates charged by various lenders, do it by telephone.

This permits you to weigh one set of terms against another without being rushed into a hasty decision. Your key to "comparison shopping," regardless of the amount of credit or how long you have to repay it, is the percentage cost of credit on a yearly basis. Also, ask each lender to quote you the annual percentage rate or APR.

In other cost cutting ideas from the association, the CPAs say, a larger downpayment might help hold down the cost of credit, but to think twice before borrowing the downpayment from a second lender. This automatically means two payments and the higher interest on the second loan may cut heavily into any saving realized on the first.

Car loans and other types of consumer financing now are commonly offered with a repayment schedule of four or even five years. This reduces monthly payments, but adds to the interest charged. Compare your overall costs with shorter repayment schedules and see if a longer paying-back period is worth the extra expense.

If you have been refused credit, the CPAs stress, you have the right to ask the credit bureau to inspect your file. There are federal rules requiring a credit bureau to grant a person access to his file and to correct any errors it may contain. A useful pamphlet on this topic is the "Consumer Handbook To Credit Protection Laws" and is available from the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Washington, D.C. 20551.

They're TOPS

Taking part in the TOPS MI-380 party held Oct. 30 at the United Presbyterian Church of Belleville were this trio of bunnies: Truday Kincaide (from left) who has lost 30 pounds; Charlene Wagner, who has a 16-pound weight loss, and Jane Ward, who is 20 pounds lighter these late fall days. Highlighting the party were trick or treat bags filled with diet goodies. Anyone wishing to join or visit the club on Wednesday evenings is welcome to arrive at 6:30 p.m. for weigh-in time.

Expand breakfast horizons

With today's changing life-styles has come a change in our eating habits. The "old-fashioned" family sit-down breakfast may soon be a thing of the past. Studies have shown that without starting the day with an adequate breakfast, you may experience a mid-morning slump. A rich pastry at coffee time will add calories but will not provide all the other necessary nutrients needed at breakfast for good health.

for most adults.

Sandwiches don't just have to be lunchtime fare. A hard-cooked egg or meat sandwich along with a glass of milk and a goo source of vitamin C in the form of a whole orange, a slice of cantaloupe or a bowl of strawberries, makes a nutritious morning meal. This may be appealing to some family members and, if so, encourage their break from tradition.

You can add variety to morning meals by taking advantage of leftovers. Cold sliced chicken, a fruit salad, warm dinner rolls with butter and a glass of milk meets all the nutritional requirements of a balanced breakfast. Just keep in mind that the foods should be selected from each of the major food groups: meat, poultry, eggs, bread and cereal; fruits and vegetables; and milk and milk products.

In expanding your breakfast horizons, don't overlook traditional foods such as ready-to-eat cereals. Cereal, along with one half cup milk, milk to drink, fruit or juice and one to two slices of buttered toast meets the requirements of a good breakfast. For the more adventuresome, try serving cereal with yogurt and fresh or canned fruit. Round out the meal with milk to drink, and, if needed for calories, a slice or two of buttered toast.

MIGRAINE HEADACHES "AGONY AROUND THE CORNER"

PAIN AND PANIC... THE MIGRAINE SYNDROME

The lights of oncoming cars may seem extra bright, nausea wells up and your temples begin to pound. Panic sweeps over you... Oh No! Not tonight of all nights!

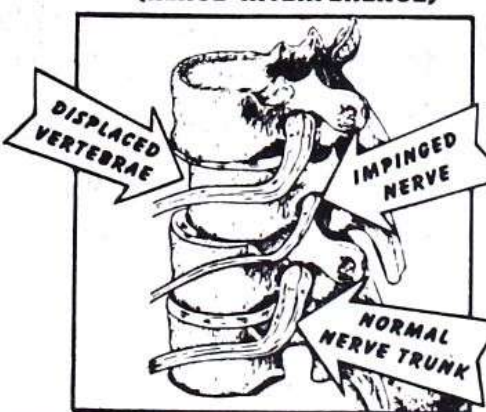

If the symptoms seem all too familiar, you are probably experiencing the warning signals of impending migraine attack. Migraine pain is not always limited to headache. Called by doctors the 'migraine equivalents', other side effects can include: chest and abdominal pains, vomiting, diarrhea, swelling in various parts of the body, fever, pains in arms and legs and rapid mood changes. A study of migraine and its long-range effects shows that often there is a general disintegration of the victim's personality.

It is the FEAR that an attack is lurking to spoil an important occasion that contributes the most to the onset of self doubt and mood changes.

IS IT THE REAL THING?

Migraine sufferers belong to their own exclusive club... and the dues are high. If your occasional headache is caused by drinking or smoking, stale air, eye strain, smog or constipation, then you are one of the lucky ones. Not so fortunate are the sufferers from chronic tension headache... painful, but not as serious as vascular or migraine headache.

VERTEBRAL SUBLUXATION (NERVE INTERFERENCE)

THIS COULD BE THE START OF SOMETHING BIG

Migraine headaches almost never just "go away." Usually, they worsen, disrupting home life and social relationships and adversely affecting performance on the job. Fearing the pain and incapacity of a migraine attack, the sufferer begins to mistrust himself and lose confidence in his ability. Others may begin to mistrust him, opportunities slip by and life on the home front is strained as the family attempts to cope with the frequent migraine mood changes.

WHY ME?

Millions of Americans spend countless dollars on headache remedies, even though they know that these remedies will probably give little or no relief, for migraine headaches are caused primarily by expansion of the arteries and pinching of the nerves of the neck and head. Since the nerves and blood vessels pass through small openings and canals between the neck vertebrae, a misalignment pinches those nerves and vessels leading to the head, causing excruciating pain.

WHERE TO TURN

Chiropractic researchers have developed special nerve tests to determine the precise point in the neck at which the arteries and nerves are being blocked. In difficult or unusual cases, chiropractors often elect to use X-ray machines to pinpoint the location of misalignment. Many thousands of X-rays have proved that the migraine trouble develops when one or more of the tiny neck bones is misaligned or forced out of normal position.

Your chiropractor, a specialist of the spine and nerves, uses all the aids of modern technology to track down the source of the problem. It is usually a simple matter to release the pinched nerves and blood vessels and banish the migraine forever.

YOUR HEAD IS IN YOUR HANDS

No one who has ever suffered a migraine attack would willingly repeat the experience... and you don't have to. A quick, painless and inexpensive visit to your chiropractor can mean relief on the way. Your doctor has devoted many years to the study of the conditions that cause migraine. To determine whether or not you suffer from migraine headaches, recognize the symptoms and seek help immediately from your Doctor of Chiropractic.
